Lonely 21st birthday for Patty Columbo

PATRICIA COLUMBO

Today Patricia Columbo is 21.

For her, today is a day of loneliness.

She was born June 21, 1956, to Frank and Mary Columbo. She was their first child. She was a beautiful daughter, whom they loved and cherished.

Today, Miss Columbo is alone. She is being tried for killing her parents, and her 13-year-old brother, Michael, of Elk Grove Village.

PROSECUTORS CALL her a cold-blooded murderess, a femme fatale who used sex to wrap men around her little finger.

They say she used her beautiful body to entice two would-be "hit men" to murder her family. When those men refused, she enlisted her lover, Frank DeLuca, 39, to carry out the slayings, prosecutors say.

And, the state says, he did it while Miss Columbo looked on.

Together, she and DeLuca sit in court. She listens attentively; her large round eyes growing larger and rounder when particularly vicious things are said about her.

MYRTIS PETERSEN, of North Augusta, S.C., and Carolyn Tygrett, of Cary, regard Miss Columbo differently from others in court. They are Mary Columbo's sisters.

"When she turns her head a certain way, you can see Mary," Mrs. Petersen once commented.

They say they remember happier times. "Pat was the sweetest girl you could meet," they often say. "If we only really knew what happened."

They see Miss Columbo in court. They remember the Patricia they knew and loved. And they weep. They have wept so often that Stanton Bloom, DeLuca's defense attorney, once demanded they be expelled from the courtroom at the first sign of emotion. He said their tears would prejudice the jury.

Miss Columbo has wept only once since the eight-week trial began. She cried when a pathologist described, in gory detail, in what condition he found the body of Michael Columbo.

ALTHOUGH SHE allegedly murdered him, friends say she loved her younger brother.

Two-thirds of the time Miss Columbo is depressed, her nerves frayed by the pressures of the trial. She sees a priest once a week. He gives her the spiritual strength she needs to survive another week in court.

Byline report

Dave Ibata

She lives in a private cell at the Women's Detention Center of the Cook County Jail Complex, Chicago. Her cell is one block south of the Cook County Criminal Courts Building, where she is being tried. The 2600 block of S. California Avenue is the only terrain she has known for more than a year.

Her living conditions are sparse, but adequate. Her cell has a door, not a sliding gate, and offers a minimum of privacy. She sleeps on a bunk, and hangs her four outfits on a single clothes bar. She has her own toilet facilities. Meals are served in the dining hall.

MISS COLUMBO'S is a white, middle-class suburban face in a sea of 170 blacks and Latinos from Chicago's inner city.

When she first arrived at the facility May 15, 1976, she had a difficult time coping. She was unable to get along with the other inmates, had difficulty sleeping and couldn't hold her food down. Police said she also contemplated suicide. But she has since learned to survive.

Patricia Columbo would inherit only $5,000 of her family's estate, according to a will prosecutors are trying to enter into testimony. — Page 10

Her looks belie the dehumanizing conditions of jailhouse life. Her shoulder-length, brown hair always is neatly coiffured; her plucked eyebrows are perfectly arched; her soft, angelic features are enhanced by judicious use of cosmetics. Her body still is slim and lithesome.

She keeps in fashion, and never appears in court wearing the same outfit two days in a row. She follows a jailhouse custom, and exchanges clothes with other female prisoners.

EVIDENTLY, HERS is an easy frame to fit. She has appeared in court wearing more than 100 different outfits.

Her looks, her dress and her actions have made her one of the most talked-about women in Chicago. Her attorneys fear for her well-being.

They optimistically look to the day she is acquitted, but urge her to change her name and drop out of sight the moment she leaves the jail.

She has never told her attorneys what she would do if acquitted. They say she's been too busy with her defense to talk about the future.

MISS COLUMBO'S attorneys today plan to give her a cake for her birthday. It will be cut and served in the bailiff's office in the rear of the courtroom.

In attendance will be Judge R. Eugene Pincham, his bailiff, several sheriff's deputies assigned to the courtroom, Miss Columbo and her three attorneys. DeLuca likely will not be invited. His birthday is Thursday.

The event will not exactly be a party. It simply will be an attempt to cheer up Miss Columbo. Her three best friends — her lawyers — will be present.

Miss Columbo has few friends left; just the men who are fighting to save her freedom.

Tighter RTA budget likely to cut 1 route

by LYNN ASINOF

The Northwest suburbs will lose at least one major bus route and several proposed routes under an austerity budget proposed Monday by the Regional Transportation Authority.

The new Des Plaines to Woodfield route, started Sunday, would be one casualty of the belt-tightening. Four proposed routes for the Northwest suburbs would be eliminated, as would the expansion of the present Wheeling and Buffalo Grove service.

Schaumburg's proposed dial-a-ride and subscription bus service, to be funded by a federal grant, also would be cut because the austerity budget provides no matching funds for the program.

RTA BOARD members Monday said there is little hope of avoiding the austerity budget, which was drafted because of a stalemate over the imposition of a 5 per cent gasoline tax in the six-county area.

The $176.6 million budget cuts $55.5 million from RTA spending, reducing subsidies to bus lines, commuter railroads and the CTA by 11.79 per cent.

Joseph DeJohn, executive director of the North Suburban Mass Transit District, said such a cut may also mean the elimination of some local Des Plaines bus routes. Fare hikes also may be considered.

"It would mean some service cutback and would be most definitely on the lowest density routes," DiJohn said. "That would probably be the Des Plaines locals."

BOARD MEMBERS said they will vote Friday, either for a gas tax or the austerity budget. City members said they hope a suburban member joins them in voting for the gas tax, but suburbanites say they plan to stand firm.

"There is no way in the world I would vote for a flat gas tax," said Gene Leonard of Oak Forest, noting it would have the greatest impact on the suburbs that now have the least service.

Suburban members favor a differential gas tax, with some counties being charged a higher rate than others. Chicago board members, however, say the differential tax is illegal and won't work for legislation in Springfield to make it legal.

"I DON'T SEE any reason that Chicago should pay a 5 per cent gas tax while people from the wealthy areas pay a 1 per cent tax," said Chicago member Patrick O'Malley.

The austerity budget would elimi-

U.S. DISTRICT COURT Judge Joseph Sam Perry ended the Black Panther civil rights trial Monday by issuing a directed verdict for dismissal of charges against seven Chicago police officers. Above, center right, Jeffrey Haas, attorney for plaintiffs said he was "stunned" by the decision. Listening to Haas is Fred Hampton's brother, Bill, center, and Atty. Flint Taylor in light suit.

Panther trial charges dismissed

by ROBERT MACKAY

A federal judge, faced with a jury deadlocked for nearly 35 hours, Monday dismissed charges against seven police officers in the 1969 slaying of two Black Panthers in a predawn raid.

Senior U.S. District Judge Joseph Sam Perry issued his decision when the jury, which began deliberations Friday morning, declared itself deadlocked following one of the longest trials in federal court history.

Proceedings in th $47.7 million civil rights trial took 320 days during an 18-month period.

The plaintiffs "have failed to sustain a version of proof in every claim," the 80-year-old judge told a courtroom packed with about 120 persons in announcing his decision to grant the defense motion for dismissal.

ATTORNEYS FOR the plaintiffs — the families of Black Panther leaders Fred Hampton and Mark Clark — said immediately they will appeal.

Jeffrey H. Haas, 34, one of the two plaintiffs' attorneys, said he was "absolutely stunned" by the decision.

"It's clear he (Perry) is part of the coverup of the murders of Fred Hampton and Mark Clark," Haas said. "I think the people will be outraged by this. We saw $2 million of city and county money and millions of federal money spent to continue the coverup."

The officers were among a police task force, authorized by the state's attorney, which burst into a Panther headquarters on the night of Dec. 4, 1969.

Authorities at first maintained they engaged in a gun battle with the Panthers. Later investigation indicated only one Panther shot was fired — by

Roosevelt school rental sent to planners

The decision whether Arlington Heights has authority over Roosevelt University's use of a vacant local junior high school was postponed Monday by trustees who sent the matter to the plan commission for review.

More than 100 vocal residents representing both sides of the question attended the meeting expecting a decision from the board on whether village laws should be amended to require colleges and universities to apply for a permit before using a public school.

Officials of Roosevelt University of Chicago have asked to lease either Miner or Thomas Junior High from Arlington Heights Dist. 25 for a branch campus beginning in the fall of 1978. University officials have said they prefer Miner because of its design and proximity to The Chicago & North Western Ry.

VILLAGE ATTY. Jack Siegel has said current zoning laws would permit Roosevelt University to use a junior high school without obtaining approval from the village board.

The board's legal committee last week recommended that the zoning ordinances be changed to require special use permits for colleges and universities.

Trustees said Monday's action does not mean they agree with that recommendation but is only the formal procedure for suggested changes in zoning laws.

Comments from the standing-room-only crowd at the meeting were divided.

ANTHONY WILLOW OF 406 E. Olive St., said he is not concerned about Dist. 25 officials' warnings that if the school is not rented it may cost taxpayers money to maintain it.

"I am not interested in saving $100 on my tax bill," Willow said. "If I weigh the difference in the tax bill against the impact a university would have on the neighborhood the situation is very clear to me. I think human values are more important."

Ed Squire, 1102 E. Campbell St., agreed. "If we let Dist. 25 — the biggest landlord in Arlihgton Heights — to be exempt from village plat and zoning laws required of everyone else then that's not equality under the law."

Kay Orr, 1530 N. Pine Ave., represented the opposite view. "The village is in danger of putting itself in the position of interfering with the school board if it changes the zoning laws," she said.

"THE ONLY difference (between the village board and the Dist. 25 board) is that this is a conservative

Police union chief faces court today

It's round two today for John J. Flood, president of the Combined Counties Police Assn., who is to appear in court for the second time this year on charges of drunken driving. Flood, 36, is scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court at 11 a.m. Flood, 36, of Mundelein, was arrested May 8 while driving north on Arlington Heights Road near Checker Drive in Buffalo Grove after his car was clocked going 43 miles an hour in a 35 m.p.h. zone, police said. Buffalo Grove Patrolman Walter Grochowski said there was a heavy odor of alcohol on Flood's breath as he "staggered" from his car. Flood was brought back to police headquarters where he was charged with speeding, improper lane usage, drunken driving, refusing to take a breathalizer test and battery. He also was charged with battery after he allegedly grabbed Sgt. Peter Lippert around the neck with his hands during police processing and said "Don't tell me what to do."

The CCPA president was found guilty of a drunken driving charge May 24 in the Waukegan branch of the Lake County Circuit Court. He had been arrested Oct. 6 after his car allegedly struck another vehicle in a Mundelein restaurant parking lot. Flood was placed in a Mundelein lockup after he allegedly refused to be fingerprinted or mugged. Flood still faces state-levied charges of leaving the scene of an accident and refusing to take a breathalizer test. Both Flood and his attorney, James Simpson contended that the Mundelein arrest was a frame-up and that police were lying to get a conviction on Flood because he is president of a police union.

Neither Buffalo Grove nor Mundelein police are members of the CCPA which has more than 2,000 members in 50 chapters which include Wheeling, Des Plaines, and Mount Prospect. Flood since has filed an appeal in the Mundelein case, saying that he was unfairly treated and singled out for special treatment by police.

Hein cleared by ethics panel

William Hein, Wheeling village president, Monday night was cleared of conflict of interest charges by the village's ethics commission. A defeated candidate in the April election had charged that a conflict of interest existed because Hein's parents are the holders of two liquor licenses in the village. Under Illinois law a village president also must serve as village liquor commissioner. In clearning Hein, the commission chairman said Hein's official actions have not been in violation of the ethics ordinance.

No suspect in Scouts' murders

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (UPI) — Authorities have several persons "under scrutiny" in the sex murders of three Girl Scouts but no definite suspect, the district attorney leading the investigation said Monday.

Dist. Atty. Sid Wise said law enforcement officers are making progress in the investigation of the deaths of Lori Lee Farmer, 8, Michelle Guse, 9, and Doris Denise Milner, 10 — although no one person has been described as a suspect.

"When the day comes when I say we have a suspect, I mean to say there is a person in imminent threat of arrest and questioning, Wise said. "We have a number of people who are under scrutiny — maybe in-depth scrutiny — but no suspect."

THE DISTRICT attorney said more than 100 persons have been interviewed and about six polygraph tests have been given since the investigation began last Monday at Camp Scott, located less than two miles south of this northeast Oklahoma city in the shadow of the Ozark Mountains.

Bodies of the three girls, still zipped in their sleeping bags, were found June 13 about 150 yards from their tent. Two had been beaten to death and the third had been strangled. All three had been sexually assaulted.

Wise said some of the persons interviewed requested polygraph examinations.

"They just want to go about their business and quit being under scrutiny," he said.

Wise said authorities hope to get a psychological profile of the assailant.

"I think somebody has been assigned to it," he said, adding authorities would work with psychologists and psychiatrists at the University of Oklahoma to compile a profile of the type of person who would commit such a crime.

NEITHER WISE nor Sheriff Pete Weaver of Mayes County would discuss evidence gathered in the case, but both said special search dogs brought in from Philadelphia have been helpful.

Picking his words carefully, Wise said the dogs have been helpful "to a substantial degree."

Monday was the second day rain fell in the Locust Grove area, and Wise and Mayes County Sheriff Pete Weaver said it would help the dogs in their search for clues.

"We're getting a little drizzle this morning," Weaver said. "It should be an ideal condition for the dogs."

The dogs' trainer has said a light rain or drizzle helps the dogs by returning the scent to the ground. At one point last week, water was dropped over the area by a plane to help the dogs.

THE DROPPING of water caused some controversy. An Oklahoma dog trainer said the action was bizarre. Wise defended it Monday, saying the idea was first advanced by a zoology professor at the university.

"And it did help," he said.

Weaver criticized as "false as false can be" reports there has been dissension among the various law enforcement agencies working on the investigation.

"I've never seen anything run as smoothly as this," he said.

Defense rests in murder case against two nurses

DETROIT (UPI) — Defense attorneys abruptly ended their presentation Monday for two Filipino nurses accused of poisoning hospital patients, alleging that pointless government evidence already has "dragged out" the trial.

The decision by attorneys for Filipina Narcisco, 31, and Leonora Perez, 32, meant the jury probably will receive the case next week. The U.S. District Court trial is in its 12th week.

Attorney Thomas O'Brien, representing Miss Narciso, said his defense team decided that evidence pesented by 18 witnesses last week is enough to refute the government's allegations.

"The time has come now to get it to (the jury) and let them decide," O'Brien said.

THE NURSES ARE accused of poisoning or conspiring to poison eight Ann Arbor Veterans Administration Hospital patients in the summer of 1975. The charges include one count of murder against Miss Narcisco.

Both women denied emphatically on the witness stand that they injected Pavulon, a powerful muscle relaxant, into the patients who were among 52 suffering sudden breathing failures at the hospital. A dozen died.

The defense case also featured supporting testimony from a survivor and a former patient.

William Loesch said a man in a green medical suit was near him seconds before he stopped breathing. The other witness saw a man in green clothing near John Herman moments before Herman died.

O'BRIEN SAID the defense team wanted to avoid the type of testimony the government presented, referring to complicated explanations from medical and hospital administration experts.

"They (prosecutors) spent several weeks on matters we don't think were very important or very critical," O'Brien said. "The thing's been dragged out. There's no excuse for that."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Yanko said his side will call about 12 witnesses this week to rebut the defense presentation.

"We don't feel the testimony of any of the defense witnesses damaged our case. To the contrary, we feel somewhat strengthened by some of the offerings made by the defense," Yanko said without explaining how his case was strengthened.

Prosecution rebuttal witnesses will take up the rest of this week. Final arguments are scheduled to start next Monday, with the case going to the jury Wednesday or Thursday.

Watergate case closed; papers sent to archives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate case was closed Monday.

The investigation sequence that began just over five years ago when guard Frank Wills called the cops because he found black electrical tape holding open a basement door in the Watergate office building ended Monday as the Special Watergate Prosecution Force went out of business.

The files, the famous tapes of Richard Nixon, the correspondence, the dead ends and the loose ends all were placed in gray cardboard boxes. They were sent to the National Archives and some of them — but very little that's new — will be open to public examination.

THE PROSECUTORS presented evidence to a grand jury that named the President of the United States an unindicted coconspirator in covering up White House participation in the breakin. Nixon resigned facing certain impeachment. He was pardoned by his successor, Gerald Ford.

The former attorney general of the United States, John Mitchell, and the former White House chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman, will be in jail by Wednesday. Another top Nixon aide, John Ehrlichman, already is in prison.

The prosecutors presented evidence that convinced a U. S. District Court jury to convict them of conspiracy, obstruction of justice and perjury.

Mitchell and Haldeman have one last chance — a petition before the Supreme Court to reconsider its decision to let lower court rulings stand. The court rarely reverses itself.

BADLY NEEDED oil has begun to flow through the Trans-Alaska pipeline. Newsmap shows the route from North Slope to the ice-free port of Valdez.

Pipeline oil flows, but not here

by LEA TONKIN

Despite a minor leak and an hour's delay from "prestartup jitters," the Trans-Alaska pipeline — an 800-mile-long triumph of man over the frigid wilderness — began sending its first "black gold" southward from above the Arctic Circle Monday to relieve the nation's oil shortage.

But pipeline officials were waiting until the first oil pumped from the nation's richest oil field reached a terminal at Valdez, Alaska — about a month from now — before celebrating the success of the $9.9 billion, 9-year-old project.

"We had a little bit of prestartup jitters," said Mike Jens, boss of Pump Station No. 1, above the Arctic Circle. "There was one minor leak in one of the flanges in the pump station. It's been fixed."

THAT FIRST LEAK prompted a pipeline spokesman to say:

"Nobody is celebrating yet. We don't expect anything to go wrong. But until the oil gets to Valdez (an ice free-port to the south) and that first tanker pulls away, the whole system really hasn't been tested."

In the Midwest it was reported consumers won't reap the benefits of the pipeline for several years, Herb Hugo, senior editor of the Platt's Oilgram publication in Chicago, said. The start-up of oil through the pipeline "has virtually no short range meaning for people in the Midwest." A temporary boon to consumers on the West Coast is the likely impact of the pipeline completion, he said.

Oil companies are talking about several proposals for oil pipelines to the Midwest, but licensing, financing and construction for such a project would take several years, Hugo said.

THE FLOW OF CRUDE oil from Alaska's North Slope will not reach 1.2 million barrels a day until mid-1978, Hugo predicts. He said the United States uses more than 15 million barrels of oil a day, and demand continues to rise.

"All these things tend to put a damper on our exuberant spirits," Hugo said. "What it boils down to is, we got over-excitied (about the pipeline) a few years ago." Hugo also said there is a possibility of sabotage on the 800-mile Alaska pipeline.

Hugo said Chicago area consumers can be thankful for relatively stable pump prices for gasoline, however. Although he does not rule out the possibility of a penny-a-gallon price hike during the Fourth of July weekend or later in the summer, the oil expert said. "It's been unusually quiet in the past three or four weeks. Usually at this time of year, there's a big surge in prices."

Unleaded regular gasoline sales continue to claim an increasing share of all gas sales, Hugo said. He estimates unleaded gas sales at 30 per cent of the market.

It's too early to measure the impact of self-serve gasoline sales in Illinois, Hugo said. The Illinois fire commissioner's office recently began issuing licenses for self-serve operations in the state.

Ugandan army, police continue to search for missing Idi Amin

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI)—Ugandan President Idi Amin has vanished following a weekend attempt on his life and the army and police have been mobilized to look for him, the newspaper The Nation reported Monday.

Troops moved into the streets of Kampala. Armored personnel carriers and troops patrolled nearby Entebbe, site of the country's international airport, telephone reports from the area said. Roadblocks were thrown up in both cities.

Diplomatic and other sources said there had been some type of shootout on the outskirts of Entebbe Saturday morning but they could not confirm The Nation report, which said Amin had vanished after his car was riddled with bullets by two gunmen.

THE NATION quoted Vice President Mustafa Adrisi as saying the army and police had been fully mobilized in a search for the burly 6-foot-6, 250-pound Amin.

"If you find him, please contact Uganda immediately," Adrisi told The Nation, possibly in a tongue-in-cheek remark.

In another mystifying development, Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported briefly that Ugandan Finance Minister Brig. Gen. Moses Ali arrived in Cairo Monday with a letter from Amin to President Anwar Sadat.

Ali's three-day visit had been scheduled, and it was not clear when the letter was written.

Most reports from Kampala were confused and sketchy. One diplomatic source said emphatically Amin's car had not been involved in a shootout and Kampala "was very, very quiet."

OTHER STORIES, however, suggested a rebellion within the army and said Amin even may have been captured by a rebel faction. None of these reports could be confirmed.

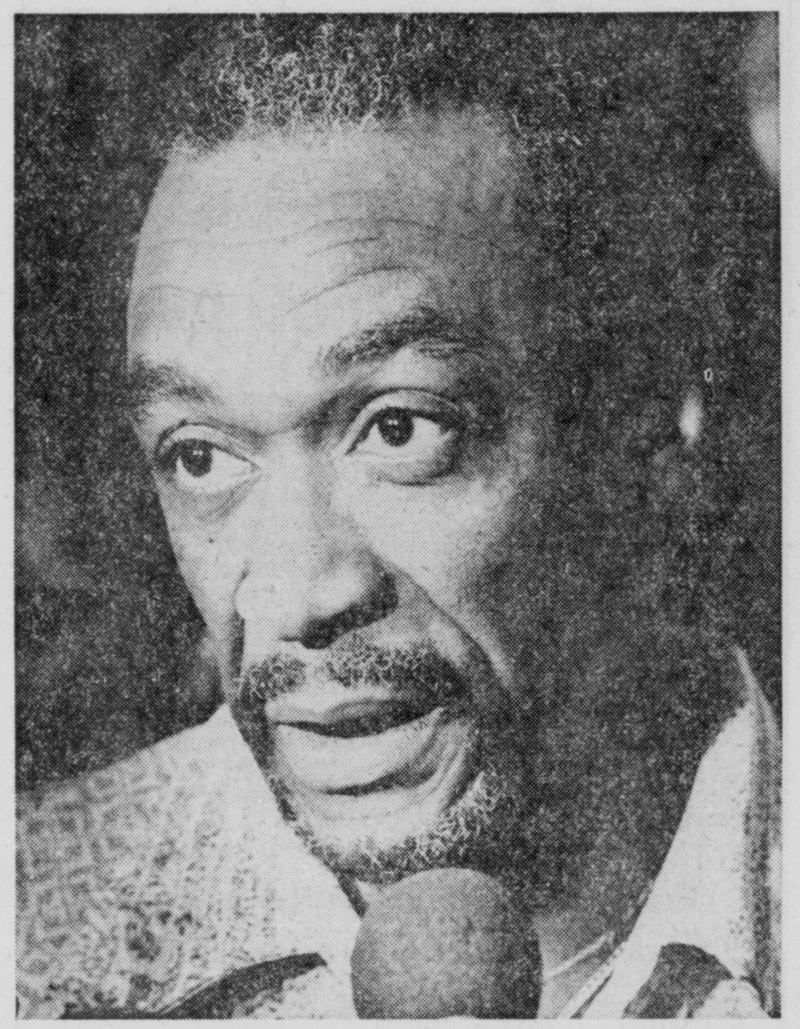
An official at Amin's Entebbe statehouse said The Nation report was inaccurate but added vaguely, "We do not know where the president is. I haven't seen him since Friday."

He reported, "There are a lot of Muslim troops outside the statehouse and Christians inside" — a possible indication of fresh unrest within the army.

Other government officials refused to comment. Radio Uganda had said earlier Amin might attend a public function Monday in western Uganda, then dropped this item although it continued to broadcast normally.

In Washington, U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young was asked by reporters outside the White House about Amin's disappearance. "I hope nobody helped him," Young replied. "I wouldn't mind him just taking off on his own."

The Nation story said thousands of troops had combed the Entebbe area following the assassination attempt and then gone on a rampage.



JAMES (DUKE) DAVIS, one of seven policemen who had charges dropped in the Black Panther trial by Judge Joseph Sam Perry said Monday he was pleased with the verdict and now plans to get back to work.

Thompson fires aeronautics director

by STEVE BROWN

SPRINGFIELD — Gov. James R. Thompson Monday fired without explanation State Aeronautics Director Melvin Rosenbloom.

The action comes just 10 days after Thompson's patronage chief, Michael Dunn, ws fired for misusing state aircraft.

In a three-paragraph statement, Thompson said he requested Rosenbloom's resignation at 3 p.m. Monday. When it was not delivered, the release said, Thompson ordered Acting Illinois Dept. of Transportation Sec. William Ghesquiere to fire Rosenbloom immediately.

Rosenbloom reportedly was on a fishing trip and not available for comment, an IDOT spokesman said.

A THOMPSON SPOKESMAN said the governor and Rosenbloom had several meetings during the last week to discuss Rosenbloom's operation of the state agency.

Rosenbloom originally was named to the Illinois Industrial Commission and later to the state aviation post by Daniel Walker, former governor.

He had been criticized for his use of state aircraft to tour aviation facilities and attend meetings throughout the nation.

Thompson named Rosenbloom's assistant, David Campbell, a temporary replacement to the $33,000-a-year post.

The operation of the aeronautics department has been the center of controversy the past year, primarily because state officials have been allowed to use airplanes for political trips and personal outings at the taxpayers' expense. A recent report on state planes disclosed abuses and called for changes, but Rosenbloom has failed to act on the recommendations.

CONTINUING MEDIA reports have surfaced about top state officials, including Thompson, Walker and former Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett, who used the plane for personal and political trips. Thompson said recently that his campaign committee will begin paying for political flights.

Rosenbloom drew heavy criticism after reports he had flown state planes to Texas and the East Coast for conferences and set up helicopter flights to take a number of state officials to a testimonial party for retiring United Auto Worker's President Leonard Woodcock.

Thompson aides declined to cite any specific examples that led to Rosenbloom's firing, but they indicated the governor was dissatisfied with his operation of the department.

Sunny skies welcome summer '77

Northwest suburban residents can sit back and enjoy the arrival of summer today, for weather officials say temperatures will remain in the 80s this week and skies will be sunny.

Summer season officially crept into the area at 6:14 a.m. today, celebrating the summer solstice and the year's longest day of sunlight. But beware: thunderstorms and showers are just around the corner.

The National Weather Service in Chicago said Monday skies will cloud up and the humidity will rise after Thursday, paving the way for a few thunderstorms any time through Saturday. Highs this week will range in the 80s with nightly lows in the lower 60s.

TODAY'S HIGH IS expected to be in the 70s with the low tonight in the 60s. Sunny skies will continue through Wednesday.

Spring wound up its 1977 stay Monday with a watery flourish — floods in three states following weekend rains of nearly 10 inches.

Spring left weekend torrents which caused flooding along the Cottonwood and Marais De Cygnes rivers in Kansas, Sabine River in Texas and Neosho and Spring rivers in Oklahoma.

IN THE DRY West, a fire believed started by careless campers crackled through Arizona's Coronado National Forest. It threatened a hummingbird sanctuary in Ramsey Canyon and forced three dozen families out of their homes.

Officials said the fire had spread over 6,000 acres and was out of control. Jack Darnell of the U.S. Forest Service said he believed the hummingbirds could take care of themselves because "they're pretty smart and if they felt threatened they'd pack up and leave."

Temperatures across the country ranged from 55 at Crescent City, Calif., to 98 at El Paso, Tex.

The National Weather Service said the first day of summer would see showers and thunderstorms from the Tennessee Valley through the eastern half of the Gulf Coast and the southern Atlantic Coast.

Panther trial charges dismissed

Clark. The defense maintained the Panthers fired 15 shots.

At issue in the case was whether the seven officers deliberately shot Illinois Panther Chairman Hampton of Maywood, and Clark, a deputy from Peoria. Four other persons were wounded in what was described as a raid in search of illegal weapons.

DEFENDANTS IN the suit originally included former Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan, whose investigators participated in the raid and 20 other federal and local law enforcement agents. Those charges were dismissed last April. Only the seven policemen who actually fired shots in the raid were defendants at the end of the trial.

Families of Hampton, Clark and the seven survivors filed the lawsuit in 1970, charging the victims' civil rights were violated. The defendants also were charged with using excessive force and of wrongful death.

Attorneys representing the Panthers, G. Flint Taylor Jr., 31, and Jeffrey H. Haas, 34, repeatedly during the trial attacked Perry, 80, as biased and hostile.

"It's like playing in the World Series against the Yankees with their manager as the umpire," Taylor said.

Haas said, "Whether it's his (Perry's) will or his whim, the 18 months have been excruciating. The law has been turned upside down and stretched every which way to defeat us. We can't underestimate the vengeful side of Judge Perry . . ."

Baboon-to-human heart transplant fails

• DR. CHRISTIAAN BARNARD transplanted the heart of a baboon into an unidentified white woman Monday in Cape Town, South Africa. The woman, however, died a few hours after surgery — believed to be the first of its kind. The patient had undergone open-heart surgery once before to replace an aortic valve. The baboon's heart was surgically connected in "piggyback" fashion to the human heart. Barnard has been experimenting with baboon hearts for several years. PETER HAWTHORNE, aurthor of a book on heart transplants, said that if a way could be found to make the human body accept a baboon heart, then heart donors "could be picked off the trees."

'Welfare queen' daughter sentenced

Sandra Brownlee, daughter of "welfare queen" Linda Taylor, was sentenced Monday to three years probation to repay $2,414 she received in illegal welfare payments. But Mrs. Brownlee, 26, said she is broke. "I will soon receive disability payments from the state," she told Cook County Circuit Court Judge Kenneth R. Wendt. "I have lung problems and I'm deaf in the right ear." Wendt ordered her to repay the state as soon as she is able.

Mrs. Brownlee and her estranged husband, Roosevelt, 40, pleaded guilty May 23 to 16 counts of theft. Assistant State's Atty. James E. Sternik said the state will conduct "an ongoing investigation of her finances." Mrs. Brownlee first applied for public aid early in 1972 under the name Sandra Howard, saying she was an unwed mother with no income. She continued receiving payments after she married Brownlee, Sternik said. Her mother, the "welfare queen," was sentenced May 12 to serve two to six years in prison for welfare theft and one year for perjury. She had been convicted on 49 counts of welfare fraud for cheating the state out of $8,500.

Communist tie in deaths probed

Police are investigating charges that a Communist group is responsible for the murders of a Serbian newspaper executive and the 9-year-old daughter of his fiancee, Homicide Cmdr. Joseph DiLeonardi said Monday. Gragisha Kasikovich, 45, and Ivanka Milosevich were found stabbed to death Sunday in the office of tne Serbian National Defense Council. Kasikovich was associate editor of Liberty, a Serbian anticommunist newspaper published at the council's office.

Members of the local Serbian community immediately charged Kasikovich was assassinated because of his active oppostion to the Yugoslavian government. "We are 100 per cent sure that the crime was committed by Yogoslavian secret police agents among us in Chicago," Urosh Seffer, council president, said. DiLeonardi said police had no specific evidence to support such a charge but planned to investigate.

Rail crossing aid doubled in new bill

Suburban municipalities with bad railroad crossings would be able to get more state aid for repairs because of legislation approved Monday by the Illinois House. State Rep. Jack B. Williams, D-Franklin Park, said the vote to approve the bill should enable suburban communities to push the Illinois Commerce Commission for more grade-crossing improvements. The legislation will more than double the amount of state motor fuel tax money set aside for railroad crossing improvements each year.

The lawmaker, who represents a portion of Des Plaines, said a legislative study commission report last summer indicated one problem delaying more repairs was the ICC's position that there was not enough money for additional repairs. "This should give us more ammunition to go back and tell the ICC that the money is available," Williams said. The legislative action will transfer $500,000 a month into the fund used for the crossing repairs. Current state regulations transfer only $200,000.

The bill has passed both houses and must be signed by Gov. James R. Thompson.

$1.5 million raised in Senate race

A study released Monday by Common Cause-Illinois shows state Senate candidates raised $1.52 million in the 1976 general election and that outnumbered Republicans collected $10,000 more than Democrats. James H. Klein, an assistant professor of political science at Loyola University, helped Common Cause with the survey of campaign contributions to 77 survivors of the March, 1976, primary election who ran in the November, 1976, general election. Included in contributions reported to the Illinois Board of Elections were outright donations, fundraisers, loans and inkind contributions from July 1, 1975, through Jan. 2, 1977.

Lee Norrgard, a Common Cause spokesman, said the organization is doing a similar study on 1976 Illinois House races which should be released in summer. Common Cause said 63 of the 77 candidates running for 40 Senate seats in the November general election filed reports. The law does not require candidates or committees spending or raising less than $1,000 to file reports.

Compensation law rapped by chamber, county

The Cook County Board Monday joined with the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce in opposition to the state's new workman's compensation law.

The board voted to urge immediate legislation changes in the law because of high cash awards given to persons with what county board members say are minor injuries.

For example:

• A clerk in the sheriff's office received $3,500 for injuries sustained when she hit her head on a mail box.

• A jail guard was paid $800 for injuries sustained when he accidentally caught his left ring finger in a door.

• Two assistant state's attorneys were paid nearly $10,000 compensation for broken arms they got while playing softball for the state's attorney's team.

The payments are over and above complete reimbursement for each person's medical expenses and full pay for any time lost from work. In each of the three examples the employes are now back at work.

The compensation they and dozens of other county employers are paid when injured on the job comes directly out of the taxpayers' pocket and is the result of awards made by the Illinois Industrial Commission under the state's 1975 workman's compensation law.

Cook County paid out some $400,000 in workman's compensation claims in 1974. This year the county is likely to pay close to $2 million and the difference has some county board members screaming "foul."

"THE WORKMAN'S compensation law as it is being interpreted by the industrial commission is a travesty. It is favoring people who look for problems. It is an incentive for gold bricking of the very worst kind," said Comr. Carl Hansen, Mount Prospect, during Monday's session of the Cook County Board.

The 1975 law nearly doubled the compensation level for injuries sustained on the job. The industrial claims commission's job is to determine the extent of the injury in each case and make an award based upon the seriousness of the disability.

Hansen criticized large compensation in cases where the persons were not seriously injured and are eventually able to return to work.

Comr. Harold L. Tyrrell charged that the high awards were the result of weakness among the industrial commission members. "I've bumped my head many times but I've never collected $3,500 for it," he said.

BECAUSE COOK COUNTY is self-insured, every payment is a direct drain of tax dollars. The corrections, sheriff and highway departments are the leaders in workman's compensation claims because they contain the most hazardous county jobs, said Leonard Foster, assistant state's attorney who represents the county in workmen's compensation cases.

Despite the increase in claims, Foster defended the county's record when compared to the state of Illinois, the City of Chicago and some private businesses.

"They county is paying about 1.5 per cent of its payroll in workman's compensation," Foster told the board. "A building contractor pays out 10 per cent of his payroll in premiums for workman's compensation insurance.

"The problem is that the industrial commission takes the position that serious injury should get a high compensation regardless of whether the individual recovers or goes back on the job. It is our position that an injury should not be compensated unless there is a permanent disability," Foster said.

Awards ordered by the industrial commission can be appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court. But Foster said the court's high court has been very reluctant to modify commission judgments.

The county board will pass a resolution urging state legislators to amend the law so as to limit compensation for relatively minor injuries. The Illinois State Chamber of Commerce has led the effort to amend the present law.

However, county board members were not unanimous in condemning the workman's compensation act. Comr. John Streger defended the awards as "a very necessary reimbursement to working class people."

Approximately 10,000 persons work in various departments of Cook County government.

County orders diagnostic gear

A battery of sophisticated diagnostic equipment costing $173,302 has been ordered for the new Cook County Medical Examiner's office.

Dr. Michael Schaffer, chief toxicologist, said the equipment is needed to bring the medical examiner's office (formerly the coroner's office) up to par with similar offices in other cities.

"We're trying to modernize. We've hired new people to operate this equipment. We want to be able to do a complete, more thorough job through the use of the very latest improved techniques," Dr. Schaffer said.

THE MEDICAL examiner's office was established by referendum and went into operation in January.

Dr. Schaffer said the new equipment will provide needed evidence for use in trials.

"The courts are always looking for more instrumental analysis, more scientific data generally," he said.

Equipment approved includes a scanning system, printer, and pipetter, diluter, $11,160; gas chromatographs $48,019; microscopes $40,558; three blood bank refrigerators, $4,911; polarix mobile image intensifiers $52,029; and a spectro fluoro meter, $16,623.

Doctors could be liable in mercy killings: AMA

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The American Medical Assn. warned doctors Monday they could be held liable for wrongful death actions in "mercy killings" despite statutes allowing terminally ill patients to end their lives.

A report by the AMA's Judicial Council to the organization's national convention specifically cited the controversial New Jersey case of Karen Quinlan, 22, who has been in a coma for two years, and California's new "right to die" law.

Saying no national guidelines have yet been established for terminal cases, the AMA warned that decisions for treatment are medical judgments "for which the attending physician is ultimately likely to be responsible."

THE CALIFORNIA law, initiated when the Quinlan case was at the height of public debate, allows terminally ill adult patients who face "imminent death" to choose to die rather than be kept alive by medical treatment.

But the AMA cautioned that the law "contains extensive provisions on revocation or cancellation of a patient directive' form that may well provide a fertile area for litigation against physicians in the future.

"It is not pleasant to imagine the legal possibilities that could arise from a 'directive' form 'being canceled, defaced, or burnt, torn, or otherwise destroyed' or being revoked by 'a verbal expression by the declarant,' as outlined in the California law," the AMA said.

Branding the situation an "unenviable dilemma," the medical association said:

"If a physician ignores a revocation and honors a 'directive' form, he could conceivably be liable for a wrongful death action. If, on the other hand, he honors the revocation and ignores the 'directive' form, he could conceivably be liable for an assault and battery."

THE AMA SAID that in the Quinlan case, the New Jersey Supreme Court left the issue unresolved by ruling the young woman's parents could have life-sustaining equipment removed after agreement with doctors and consultation with a hospital's ethics committee.

"The hospital in question had no such 'ethics committee' at the time" and "there were no established criteria for any such committees," the AMA said.

"Legalistic 'second guessing' on the timing of a terminal illness . . . may become a popular activity."

Miss Quinlan now is in a Morris Plains, N.J., nursing home, breathing on her own, still in a coma. Her parents said if she must rely on a respirator again, they won't allow it.

The AMA agreed in its report Monday that terminal illness decisions should be made by the family and said no doctor "should be civilly or criminally liable."

'Security service' for police chief alleged

RUTH MUGALIAN

For about three months, Rolling Meadows policemen patrolled the hallways of the Brookwood Apartment complex, the new home of Police Chief Lewis R. Case, performing what one alderman described as "a private security service" for the police chief.

City Mgr. Thomas Palmer has ordered the daily hallway patrols stopped. Assistant City Mgr. Charles Green, who relayed Palmer's order to the police department, described the checks as "more than what we were doing at other complexes."

Two patrolmen, who asked to remain anonymous, said they were given keys to one Brookwood building in February and were ordered to walk each floor three times each day.

The keys fit only the building where Case took an apartment, the patrolmen said, and they do not have keys to any other apartment complex.

LEWIS CASE

PALMER LOOKED into the matter at the request of Ald. William Ahrens, 2nd, who said he wanted to know why the patrolmen were "making private security checks" at Brookwood, Kirchoff and Hicks roads.

But Case said the policing was a normal response to complaints of vandalism. He said he stopped the checks himself because "They were not needed anymore."

"He (Ahrens) is trying to say because I live there, there's special service," Case said.

Ahrens said he asked City Mgr. Thomas Palmer several weeks ago why special security checks were being made at Brookwood. He said Palmer promised to look into it. Green then sent a memo to Case ordering the patrols stopped.

Asked why he thought the checks were being made, Ahrens said, "I have my own theories; I understand Case and the mayor's daughter live there."

Ahrens said if the "private police service" begins again he will take the matter to the city council.

TED TIFFANY, manager of Brookwood, said he gave police a key to the building and asked them if they would patrol the inside of the building after several instances of teen-age vandalism. The police returned the key "about two weeks ago," he said.

Case denied the men were ordered to patrol every floor of the building. He said they only were instructed to look inside the front entrance where mailboxes had been vandalized.

But one of the patrolmen said he knew nothing about the mailboxes. Complaints involving the mail generally are turned over to federal postal inspectors, he said.

There were reports of vandalism at Brookwood, Green acknowledged, but "not more than any place else."

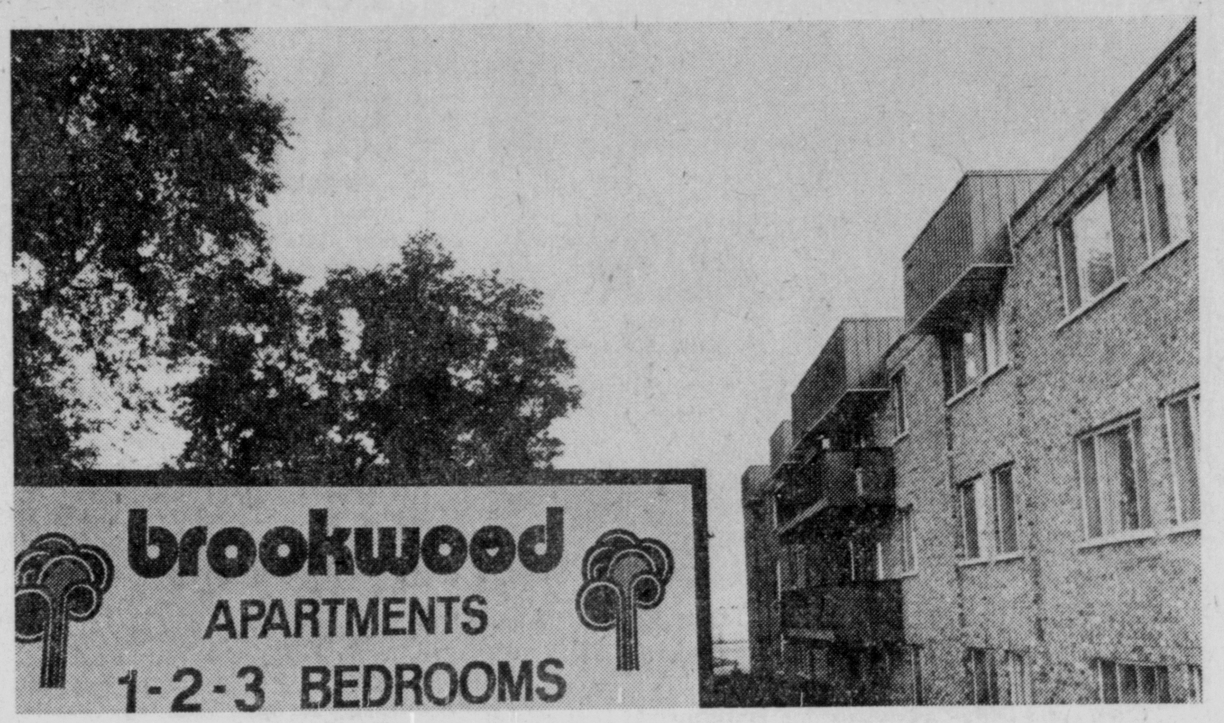
Case said the order to enter the building came from Capt. Ralph Evans while Case was recovering from a knee operation. He said he did not know the men had keys until he came back from a vacation two weeks ago.

Evans declined comment, but Green said, "I don't think the blame goes to Evans."

"I KNOW RALPH wouldn't issue orders like this," Ahrens said. "He's not going to play favorites."

Mayor Roland J. Meyer said the police activity has nothing to do with the fact Case moved in May 1. He called it "just good police work and preventive measures."

Besides reports of vandalism, Meyer said, a janitor and a teen-age boy have been beaten up.



FOR ABOUT three months Rolling Meadows police patrolled the hallways the Brookwood Apartments — the new home of Police Chief Lewis Case. What one alderman called "a private security service" for Case has been ordered stopped by City Mgr. Thomas Palmer.

Meyer said similar patrols have been made in the past at other apartment complexes and, in his nine years as mayor, he never questioned police tactics.

But direct authority over the police department has been transferred from the mayor to the city manager under Rolling Meadows' new strong manager system of government.

Palmer refused to discuss the matter, and Green, who had been acting manager for 18 months until Palmer came in May, said he never issued a similar order to the police department.

"But I'd say it's normal," Green said. "The manager runs the city."

Strong: school closing considers many factors

by SHERYL JEDLINSKI

The closing of a junior high school in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 and its proposed rental to Chicago-based Roosevelt University has generated several areas of concern from residents ranging from parking problems to class size.

Roosevelt has expressed a preference to rent Miner Junior High School, 1101 E. Miner, or Thomas Junior High School, 303 E. Thomas. While some residents of those areas have questioned allowing a school to be rented to a university, others have questioned whether a junior high should be closed at all.

Supt. Donald Strong answers questions from The Herald concerning why a junior high is being closed, what options are available for use of closed schools and what factors are being weighed by the board of education in considering leasing a junior high to Roosevelt.

Why does a junior high school have to be closed?

The primary reason is that there are not enough students to effectively run four junior highs, although finances are a big consideration too, he said.

Thomas will be down to 300 students and Miner to 270 students in 1986, he said. Capacity for each school is 1,000.

"You can't run an effective junior high program for that few kids," Strong said. "Just as a school can get so big it becomes insensitive, it can get so small it loses quality programs."

How will class size and programs in the three junior highs that remain open be affected?

Average class size will not be changed to any significant degree, he said. Schools are staffed on the basis of enrollment so the more students in a building, the more teachers there will be, with the student-teacher ratio remaining constant, Strong said.

Which junior high school will be closed?

The board has not decided, but the two middle schools, Thomas and Miner, are more likely candidates because of the nature of the community, he said.

If South, 314 S. Highland, or Rand, 2550 N. Arlington Heights Rd., were closed, almost all of the students from these buildings would have to be bused to their new schools, Strong said. If either of the two middle schools are closed, however, a significant number of students still would be within walking distance of school, he said.

Although South is the oldest of the four junior highs, it still is a good school and its population and Rand's are expected to be the most stable, Strong said.

Why is the district considering closing Miner or Thomas when this was not suggested in the Booz, Allen and Hamilton report (a professional report commissioned by the board for ways to handle declining enrollment)?

The report was designed to define problems and suggest alternatives, not to name schools for closing, he said. It never was intended to be an exhaustive study of all alternatives, he said.

What options does the district have for use of a closed school?

The least desirable alternative is to board it up and abandon it. Sale and rental are the more preferable options, Strong said. Rental of schools, though, usually is limited to not-for-profit or educational organizations because of the constraints of local zoning ordinances, he said.

Roosevelt school rental to be studied body who has a history of yielding to who screams the loudest," Mrs. Orr said. "Until a group of people began screaming the village didn't decide to get involved."

Nick Raino, president of the Dist. 25 Board of Education, said negotiations with Roosevelt University are continuing but no decisions have been made.

"We do have problems in Dist. 25 and we hope we will be able to proceed as we feel best," he said. "We have in the past cooperated with the village government and one of our objectives is to continue that type of relationship.

"But it would make me feel very bad if what you're doing tonight is to specifically stop Roosevelt University," Raino said. "I would hope you would consider it on a broader basis."

He said the school board is aware of the changes a university would make in the neighborhood.

"We are interested in the impact on the community and are not in a hurry to make a decision. However we will not take the position that we will lock up shop and wait for another agency to make our decision for us."

What has the district done to find renters and buyers and how difficult is the task?

Strong said Dist. 25 officials have put out the word as widely as possible that they have space for rent.

"The problem is there aren't that many people out there who need and can use schools and whose needs we find compatible with the community's," he said.

What is the board considering in deciding whether to lease to Roosevelt?

The board first must decide which three junior highs are best suited for the education of the district's children and which one they want to close, Strong said.

In considering Roosevelt or any other tenant, the board must determine what the impact will be on the community and study the long-range potential for safety, traffic, parking and transportation, he said.

If rental to Roosevelt does occur, adequate parking will be assured from the beginning with the district building added parking lots and charging Roosevelt for them later, Strong said. Currently Miner and Thomas have about the same number of parking spaces.

What would the terms of the lease be?

The lease would be for one year at a time with a $59,000 rent for the first year, Strong said.

All utility and custodial costs would be paid by Roosevelt and Dist. 25 would pay to maintain the buildings and grounds, including snow removal and grass cutting, he said.

Although some residents have objected to the district paying for shoveling snow and mowing grass, Strong said, "It's routine to maintain your sites and consider the service in your rental fee. It's safer to do it ourselves and know it will get done and that the building will be kept in a reasonable state of repair."

Why is the district facing a $500,000 budget deficit in 1978-79?

Debt, inflation and declining enrollment have hurt the district's income, Strong said.

For every pupil the district loses, it loses 100 per cent of one child's state aid though the district's costs drop only between 50 and 70 per cent, he said.

"If we drop three kids in a class, we're still going to need a teacher for the other 23," Strong said. "Until you get the right increment you're stuck."

How much will closing a junior high school save the district?

The district would save about $200,000 in operating costs if the building were rented, Strong said. If it were rented to Roosevelt, $59,000 in rent would be added to the savings, he said.

What about the extra money the district is getting from the 1976 referendum and this year's quadrennial tax reassessment in Wheeling Township?

Residents repeatedly were told that a successful referendum would have no bearing on the need to close schools, Strong said.

"It was stated often and clearly that the question was whether we would need to go further and cut programs," he said.

The quadrennial reassessment hasn't added much to the district's income, but has changed the source of some of this income, he said.

"Every time the assessed valuation goes up, state aid drops proportionately," Strong said. "It just means we're using more local dollars in place of state dollars."

Randhurst plans twin theater

Plans to construct a 600-seat auditorium that would convert the Randhurst Cinema into a twin theater are being finalized by Mount Prospect officials and the Randhurst Corp.

Pending approval by the village board, the theater will be built and ready for use this fall. An addition to the Randhurst Cinema will bring the number of movie theaters in the village to five. The four theaters in the village are Mount Prospect Cinema I and II, at the Mount Prospect Plaza, Rand and Central roads, Randhurst Cinema, at Randhurst Shopping Center, Rand and Elmhurst roads; and Prospect Theater, 18 S. Main St.

"The theaters will share a lobby, which is a trend in General Cinema's expansion program," said Paul Dasso, vice president for the Randhurst Corp. "It gives us the opportunity to show two different types of films at one time and offer broader appeal."

GENERAL CINEMA, a corporation that operates movie theaters throughout the country, leases the building from the Randhurst Corp. and operates Randhurst Cinema.

The new theater would be smaller than the existing one at Randhurst which seats about 900. Randhurst officials said the demand for a second theater is high and the addition is necessary to compete with area theaters.

Dasso said better films that are being released require longer showing periods.

"Ten weeks is not unusual," he said. "We want to provide an alternative to our customers so they don't have to wait 10 weeks to come back. We want to give them a more frequent change.

THE ONLY OTHER twin indoor movie theaters in the Northwest suburbs are the Mount Prospect I and II, Mount Prospect Plaza, and the Woodfield I and II, Woodfield Shopping Center, Schaumburg.

The Randhurst Corp. plan already has cleared the Mount Prospect Zoning Board of Appeals and village building committee. The village board is expected to give the plan final approval next month.

Mount Prospect Mayor Carolyn H. Krause said she supports the Randhurst proposal because the property already is zoned for possible expansion.

"If they were adding a separate building along the periphery of the shopping center," Mrs. Krause said, "you'd have to look at that differently."

MORE THAN 100 residents attended Monday's village board meeting to give their views on whether Arlington Heights or Dist. 25 should control Roosevelt University's use of a vacant junior high school. The matter was referred to the plan commission for further study.

Dist. 59 takes step towards referendum

The first step toward a possible tax increase referendum has been taken by the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education.

Meeting as a budget committee, five of the seven board members last week said they wanted the administration to prepare a list of reasons why an increase in taxes in needed.

Formal direction to do so, however, must come at a board of education meeting.

The need for a referendum has been sparked by administration projections for a 1978-79 budget deficit that would leave the district unable to meet its payroll.

The only alternative to a referendum is budget cuts, and while the committee has been studying this option, it has not found much to cut from the district's $16.5 million budget.

SOME BOARD members say they believe a referendum is long overdue, while others say they won't support a referendum until the budget is cut.

OPPONENTS OF THE B-1 bomber picketed the White House Monday, calling on President Carter to cancel this weapons program. The demonstration was sponsored by Clergy and Laity Concerned. The President has said he will make a basic judgment on the B-1 by the end of the month.

Ray prison change seen as dangerous

James Earl Ray would be in "grave danger" from those who want to keep secret details of Dr. Martin Luther King's assassination if he is transferred to a federal prison, Ray's attorney said Monday. An announcement is expected this week from Attorney General Griffin Bell on a request by Tennessee Gov. Ray Blanton that federal authorities take custody of Ray. Speaking in Chattanooga, Blanton said: "there is a good indication" Bell would grant his request.

"Ray will be in grave danger in a federal prison," Ray's latest attorney, Jack Kershaw of Nashville, said Monday. "A contract would be put out on him. He would be killed, and that would be the end of the Ray case." Asked who would arrange for such a 'contract," Kershaw replied: "Whoever managed the killing of Dr. Martin Luther King."

Report Moon church 'not christian'

The Unification Church of the Rev. Sun Myoung Moon is not a Christian church, as it claims, and many of its teachings are incompatible with Christian belief, a study commissioned by the National Council of Churches said Monday. "The Unification Church is not a Christian church," the study said, because "its doctrine of the nature of the triune God is erroneous, its Christology is incompatible with Christian teaching and belief (and) its teaching on salvation and the means of grace is inadequate and faulty." But the study also stressed that "this critique does not in any way call into question the freedom of the Unification Church to exist and to propagate its beliefs under the protection of the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution."

Firefighters report progress

Firefighters reported some progress Monday in battling several New Mexico forest fires and said the city of Los Alamos was out of danger, but a massive southern Arizona blaze raged out of control for a third day. A blaze believed started by careless campers scorched at least 6,000 acres of pine, brush and grasslands in Arizona's Coronado National Forest. Three dozen families were forced to flee their homes near Sierra Vista late Sunday and early Monday. Conditions were much improved some 300 miles to the north, where the Mt. Elden fire north of Flagstaff was contained and near control after burning 4,600 acres, much of it valuable pine stands.

Threats fail to ruffle Brezhnev

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, looking tired but unruffled by threats against his life, said Monday the Soviet Union was pledged to detente and would "never raise the sword against anyone." In a three-hour meeting with President Valery Giscard d'Estaing at Rambouillet chateau 45 miles south of Paris, Brezhnev said that under his leadership "the Soviet Union will continue its policy of detente. But Soviet spokesman Leonid Zamiatin also quoted Brezhnev as saying 'detente is running into some difficulties," chiefly over the arms race which Brezhnev said "must be limited."

Brezhnev arrived Monday to a red carpet welcome and a flurry of death threats. One caller said Orly Airport would be bombed, another that a sniper was tracking Brezhnev with a rifle and a telescopic sight. No bomb or sniper was found and Brezhnev's motorcade, making several unscheduled detours for security reasons, sped to Rambouillet Chateau without incident.

Begin installed by Israelis

The Israeli parliament installed Menahem Begin as prime minister Monday after a long and bitter debate that put into effect a drastic change of policies and personalities unprecedented in the 29-year history of the Jewish state. Begin, a one-time guerrilla chief and right-wing opposition leader, stepped to the rostrum and took the oath after an eight-hour debate climaxing in a vote of 63 to 53. "I, Menahem, son of Zeev and Hasya Begin, commit myself as prime minister to keep faith with the state of Israel and its laws and faithfully to fulfill my tasks as prime minister and to carry out the decisions of the parliament," he said.

Begin, leader of the victorious Likud bloc in May's elections, opened the debate with a call on Egypt, Syria and Jordan to start peace talks with his new government and a pledge to work to deepen Israel's friendship with the United States. "Our prime concern is prevention of a new war in the Middle East," he said.

Violence hits 3 Italian cities

Leftists Monday staged firebombings and shooting attacks in three major Italian cities and a clandestine right-wing group threatened to execute Communists in retaliation. The counter-terrorist threat came after gunmen in Milan shot an electrical company foreman in both legs. At the same time, firebombs in Florence destroyed 18 new Fiats in an automobile dealer's parking lot and others in Rome damaged the doorway of a local ruling Christian Democratic party headquarters. Responsibility for all the attacks was claimed by the Communist Front Line Organization.

Indigent women lose funds for elective abortion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 6 to 3 Monday that poor women have no legal or constitutional right to state-funded elective abortions.

The opinion said states may give benefits to poor women who carry their pregnancies to full term while denying them to those who want abortions.

The decision was a victory for anti-abortion forces and for the federal government, which argues that no right to free treatment was implied in the Supreme Court's 1973 ruling that women are constitutionally entitled to abortions.

JUSTICE LEWIS Powell, speaking for the majority in cases from Connecticut and Pennsylvania, held that neither the Social Security Act nor the Constitution prevents states from denying elective abortions to the poor.

President Carter opposes use of federal funds for abortions, and Congress is deciding whether it should continue a federal ban that is being challenged in another lawsuit. In the interim, federal payments under the Social Security Act have continued.

All states except Arizona, which does not have a Medicaid program, provide public funding of therapeutic abortions for poor women, said Pat Schoeni, a spokeswoman for the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare. She said 250,000 to 300,000 abortions — both therapeutic and elective — are federally funded each year at a cost of $40 million to $50 milion.

FORTY-THREE states including Pennsylvania and Connecticut — which until now have been forced by court order to do so — and the District of Columbia pay for elective abortions which are not medically necessary, she said.

According to a 1976 HEW survey, states which do not pay for elective abortions are New York, Indiana, Lousiana, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Idaho.

Powell said Connecticutt is placing no obstacle in a pregnant woman's path, although it "may have made childbirth a more attractive alternative."

"She continues as before to be dependent on private sources for the service she desires," the opinion said.

It said states have a wide latitude in choosing between competing demands for public funds.

WHEN CONGRESS passed the act, nontherapeutic abortions were unlawful in most states, he noted, a fact which undermines any claim that the law requires them.

Powell emphasized that both the state and the federal government are free to fund elective abortions should they choose to do so.

But the dissenters — Justices Harry Blackmun, William Brennan and Thurgood Marshall — said the difference in state funding practices "clearly operate to coerce indigent pregnant women to bear children they would not otherwise choose to have."

"Just as clearly this coercion can only operate upon the poor, who are uniquely the victims of this form of financial pressure," they said.

In a third case, the justices ruled that Mayor John Poelker of St. Louis could properly establish a policy for the city hospital to withhold abortions except in the case of a grave threat to the mother. The court said Poelker's action can be left up to the voters.

In other actions, the court:

- Ruled 7 to 2 that enforcement actions by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission are not subject to state statutes of limitations.
- Rejected a foster mother's efforts to reopen child custody proceedings in Connecticut so she can reclaim a child under her care for six years.
- Let stand a decision that the Los Angeles Times can be sued for libel under a Wyoming law designed to reach out-of-state defendants, despite the paper's minimal business link to that state.
- Agreed to decide whether Tennessee may properly bar a clergyman from its 1977 constitutional convention.

Ruling to boost backing of state anti-abortion bill

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Supreme Court's ruling that a state cannot be forced to finance elective abortions for welfare patients will boost support of an anti-abortion bill pending in the Illinois Senate, the bill's sponsor said Monday.

Sen. LeRoy Lemke, Chicago Democrat and outspoken abortion opponent, said the bill, which bans Medicaid payments for abortions and was moved to passage stage Monday, is constitutional in light of the court ruling.

"That ruling removes all doubts" that the state can refuse to fund abortions, Lemke said.

"I had 30 votes before. Now I think I've got 40," Lemke said. The bill needs 30 votes to pass the Senate.

Lemke said he had not talked with Gov. James R. Thompson about signing the bill if it passes. "I have no idea what he will do," Lemke said. "I can't see how he would oppose the bill" after the Supreme Court's action Monday.

Thompson press aide James Williams said that although the Dept. of Public Aid is against the bill, Thompson will look at the court's opinion before he makes up his mind.

The Senate also moved to passage stage a bill by Rep. Donald Deuster, R-Mundelein, which would require unmarried women under 18 to have their parents' consent or a court order to get an abortion.

An attempt to lower the age to under 16 failed on a 7-47 vote after opponents said the consent age for other medical procedures is 18.

"Other than the social issues involved, it is no different than an appendectomy, a tonsillectomy or a routine tooth extraction," Senate GOP leader David Shapiro, R-Amboy, said. "It's nothing more than a surgical intervention" and should require parental consent until the age of 18.

Both Lemke's bill and Deuster's have passed the House.

Lights, camera, action . . . and another movie is born

Actors get ready for the camera.

Cameraman moves in for a closeup.

A touch of makeup for Carol Burnett.

They came to Chicago's suburbs to film a movie.

Robert Altman, the director of such hits as "M-A-S-H" and "Nashville" was there. So was Carol Burnett. And Desi Arnaz Jr. and Howard Duff and Mia Farrow and Pat McCormack.

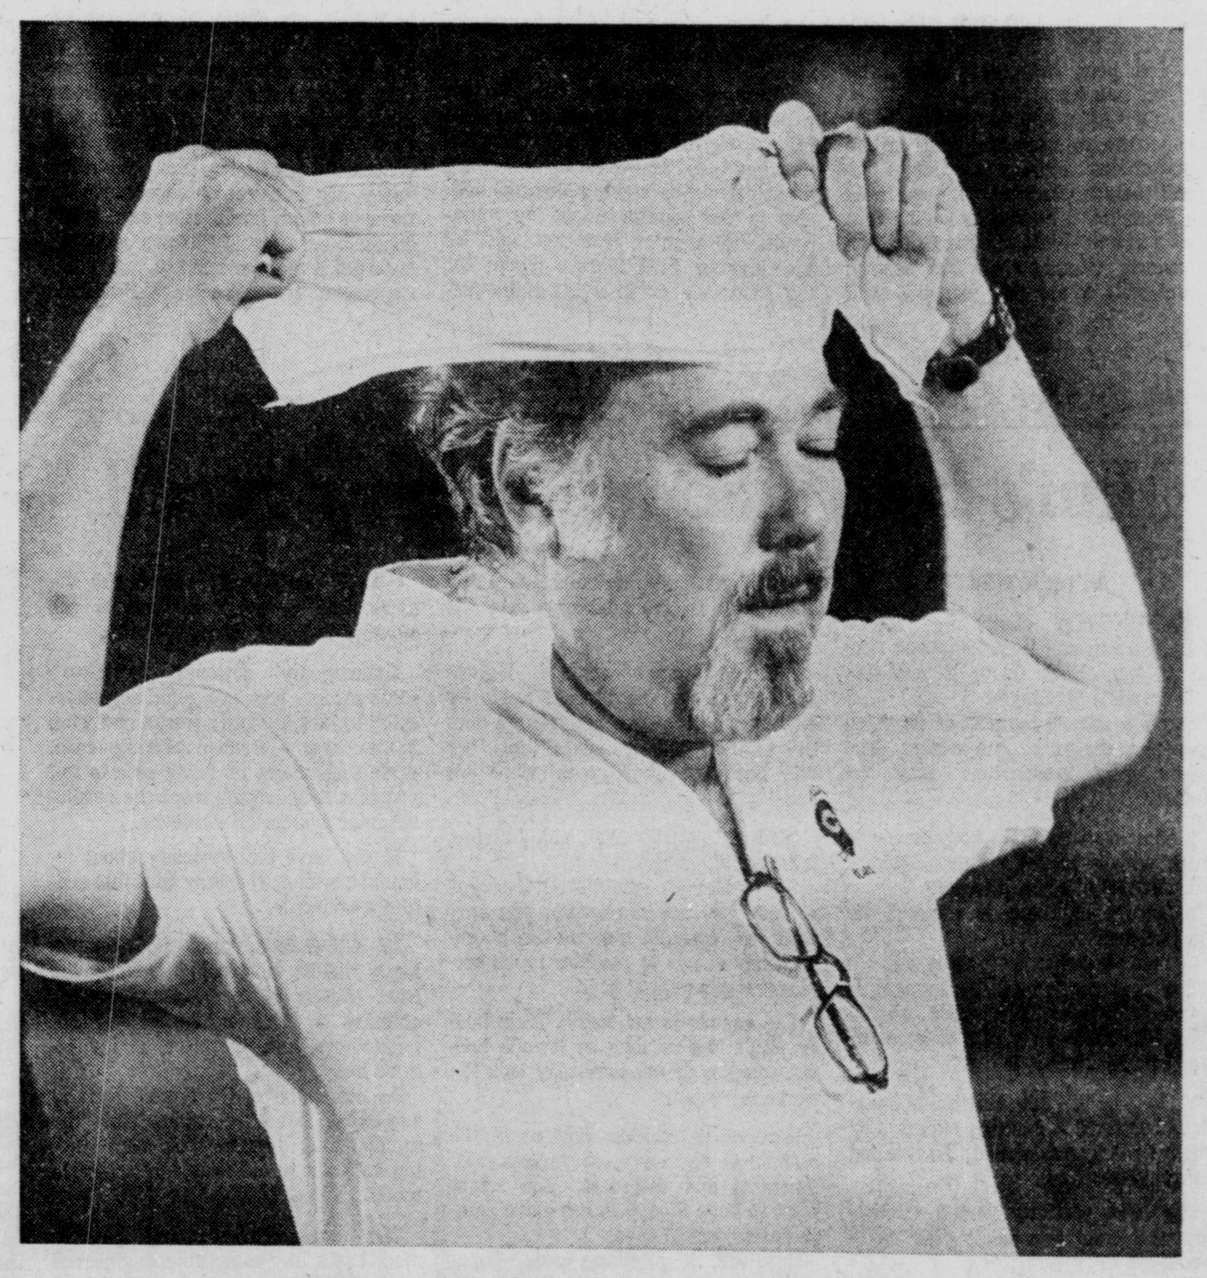
oooooooooooooooo

They came to Grace Episcopal Church in Oak Park to film scenes for the wedding in "A Wedding."

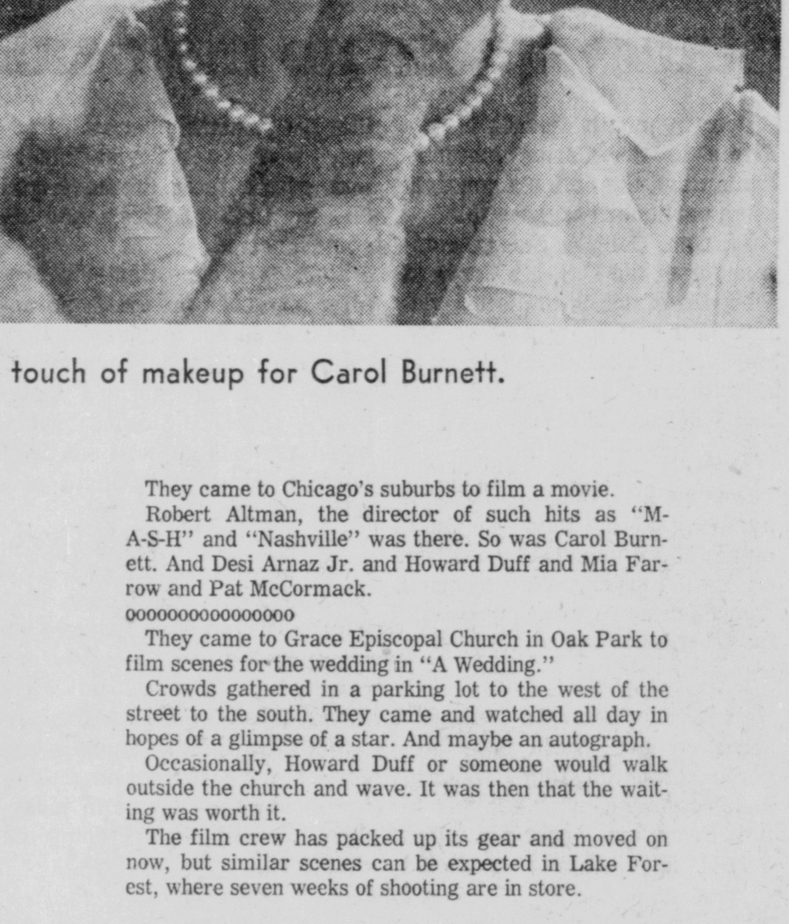
Crowds gathered in a parking lot to the west of the street to the south. They came and watched all day in hopes of a glimpse of a star. And maybe an autograph.

Occasionally, Howard Duff or someone would walk outside the church and wave. It was then that the waiting was worth it.

The film crew has packed up its gear and moved on now, but similar scenes can be expected in Lake Forest, where seven weeks of shooting are in store.



Director Robert Altman fights the heat.



And finally, "Roll 'em."

Legislature can reform elections

The Illinois General Assembly has an opportunity to make some desirable changes in the state election laws before it adjourns June 30.

One bill now pending would keep polling places open until 7 p.m. on election day, one hour later than they now close. This is a bill of special interest to suburban residents because it would give harried commuters a little more time to get to the polls.

Chicago Democrats in the legislature oppose the measure, saying it would delay the outcome of the election and inconvenience judges.

But the criticism does not stand up in the face of a measure that would have the effect of boosting voter turnout and make the exercise of the franchise easier for time-pressed persons.

There are several bills designed to consolidate local elections on specially designated days to eliminate the confusing patchwork of local election dates that now exists.

The best of the election consolidation bills is sponsored by State Rep. Harry Yourell, D-Oak Lawn. Yourell's bill specifies that in even numbered years, the primary election be held in May and the general election in November.

On odd numbered years, there would be a primary in March, a consolidated election in May for school, park and municipal officials and a non-partisan election date in November for referenda issues.

The bill would add a new measure of predictability to the state electoral process and deserves passage.

Unhappily, the prospect for reform of the absentee voter laws appears dead for the current legislative session. Bills to change the absentee ballot procedure and hopefully avoid situations in which large numbers of absentee ballots go uncounted, have been assigned to various legislative study committees.

Legislators should not forget the chaos that occurred in the 10th District Congressional race last November when thousands of absentee ballots piled up in County Clerk Stanley T. Kusper's office after the election was over.

Steps should be taken to help ensure that every properly cast absentee vote gets counted.

Starry quote no big deal

Foot in mouth disease is epidemic in the Carter administration and the nation's generals seem particularly susceptible.

Lt. Gen. Donn A. Starry, commander of the U.S. 5th Corps in West Germany, is the latest victim of the malady. And he has received a special invitation to talk to Army Sec. Clifford Alexander because of his remarks.

Starry's case is being compared to last month's incident involving Gen. John Singlaub, chief of staff in Korea, who drew an official reprimand for saying American plans to withdraw our troops from Korea would lead to war.

However, Starry's remarks seem on their face less dangerous than Singlaub's. Starry, in a commencement address to the Frankfurt American High School in Germany predicted that the young high school graduates would see a Soviet-Chinese war within their lifetimes and that the United States would become involved.

Starry's prognostications are, after all, set in the indefinate future and do not involve military criticism of official government policy. Indeed, Starry's statements, while titilating, carry about as much authority as Jean Dixon's latest astrological pronouncement.

Because of this, Pentagon officials were wise to make too big a deal of Starry's indiscretion. Perhaps he should have confined his views to the cocktail party circuit where they would have found a sympathetic audience.

Since he didn't, Starry's superiors were correct in calling the incident an "error in judgement" and by not overdoing the discipline.

All in favor say aye!

Disregarding warnings brings dire consequences

Paul Greenberg

The Pentagon is pooh-poohing the talk of a revolutionary new Russian energy beam capable of upsetting the strategic balance. Anonymous sources at the Pentagon are faithfully reflected, even magnified, in a recent headline: "Leak on Russian Beam Looks Like A Ploy; Even Pentagon Calls It a Scare Story." The story from United Press International drives home the point:

"WASHINGTON (UPI) — The leak that may have been intended as this year's lever to pry more money for nuclear weapons out of Congress sounds like science fiction. The Soviet Union is developing an energy beam to shoot down United States missiles. For the first time, the Pentagon actively is trying to combat what it regards as a 'scare story' . . . ."

Well, perhaps not for the first time. The defense Establishment is also accomplished at downgrading the importance of the Soviets' recent emphasis on civil defense and accepting the Soviet lead in missle throw-weight. With the exception of their counter parts in the diplomatic corps, no one is so proficient at the anonymously leaked putdown as the arms experts. Their general message is: We know more than our critics but of course we can't reveal it.

HOW WELL THIS treatment has been developed over the years was illustrated by the Pentagon's reaction when the respected Journal, Aviation Week and Space Technology, printed its dtailed report on the Soviet energy beam. UPI reported "a highly placed Pentagon source" replying "with a laugh." The scource explained that the story was full of inaccuracies that the Pentagon had declined to point out lest it give away military secrets.

Another effective technique is to concentrate on a specific error or two in the critics' findings in order to discredit their whole case. The source in the Pentagon is quoted as saying that Aviation Week misidentified the American satellite that had spotted Soviet tests of the new weapon, as if that somehow made the tests less important.

There is also the argument from superiority, namely that if our side hasn't succeeded in doing it, it can't be done. That line hasn't been heard very often since the pre-Sputnik years, but it has been revived of late by Secretary of Defense Harold Brown. He noted that the United States had failed to develop such an energy beam and "the laws of physics are the same in the United States and the Soviet Union." England's Lord Rutherford could not have put it better in the Thirties, when he was dismissing all that "moonshine" about extracting some kind of power from the atom.

THE BRITISH ALWAYS have been best at this sort of condescension. The flap over the energy beam and other Soviet strides in weaponry reminds one of how Winston Churchill was treated when he kept sounding the alarm over German rearmament between the wars: With disdain.

Edward N. Luttwak, in a striking piece in the current issue of Commentary, reminds his readers that as late as 1939 Churchill may have been the most ignored politician in Parliament. Having frittered away his credibility in all those years of warnings, he was perceived as a bore and a crank. To quote Mr. Luttwak:

"Thus, at sixty-four, Churchill was a back-bench MP without office — a failure, as his equally ambitious father had been. However, he still made a good living by writing lowbrow articles in the popular press, by mass-producing popular histories, and by broadcasting light feature pieces for the American commercial radio network, then as now less discriminating than the BBC which did its bit for peace by keeping his warmongering off the air."

It isn't too difficult for entrenched bureaucracy to reduce even a Churchill to low estate. Just keep picking away at any mistakes in detail, point out that the critic doesn't have access to the information available to the experts, and say something superior about its being unfortunate that the gentleman's zeal isn't better directed.

BY THE TIME the Pentagon's spokesmen (those with names and without) are through, American readers might be forgiven for thinking of Aviation Week as some kind of hysterical broadside given to sensationalism. (Its actual record compares favorably with that of UPI, which is no slouch at scare stories itself.) As for Major General George Keegan, who blew the whistle on both the Soviets' energy beam and their civil defense speed-up after retiring as chief of Air Force intelligence, he can be treated as, well, a bit of an alarmist.

Additional reading: A new biography of Winston Churchill by Martin Gilbert has just appeared and it could scarcely have come at a more propitious time. Full of quotations that seem increasingly relevant to today's arms race (though all too few may notice their relevance) the book covers the years 1922 to 1939, when Churchill was slowly whittled down to a lonely voice warning against Armageddon.

The book includes a classic reply from the experts. When Churchill complained about the increasing lag in British air power in 1935, the air ministry replied gently that it, after all, had the secret information necessary to reach the proper conclusions. Such conclusions, it added with just the right combination of condescension and superior restraint, "may not find ready acceptance by those to whom intelligence data is not accessible." Harold Brown couldn't have put it more succinctly.

Man's body due for factory recall

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Man's Body," a physiological handbook now out in paperback form, is subtitled "An Owner's Manual."

From a casual perusal of its 1,100 drawings, diagrams and charts, four discouraging conclusions may be formed:

1. The average male body-owner is stuck with a lemon.
2. PARTS ARE hard to get.
3. Hardly anything is covered by the warranty.
4. Trade-in value is virtually nil.

The first section of the manual is devoted to the break-in period. As you know, the male body cannot be operated full tilt when it is new.

YOU DON'T get maximum performance until it reaches puberty, by which time it may already be needing a thyroid overhaul.

The next section, headed "Somatotypes," tells you what your body model is.

Basically, the male body comes in three designs — endomorphic (stocky-pudgy), mesomorphic (muscular) and ectomorphic (string beany). Now the bad news.

Although some experts believe somatotype can be altered a bit by exercise during the break-in period, the manual bluntly avers that "we are basically stuck with what we are."

(SORRY ABOUT that, pal. I'm just telling it like it is.)

Okay. Having established the type of body you are stuck with, you may wish to consult the manual's expectancy charts to see how much service you can get out of it.

The answer is not much. Male bodies don't last as long as female bodies, whether or not they may look the worse for wear.

Most of the middle portion of the manual is given over to various malfunctions and disorders. You might want to keep a copy in the glove compartment just in case.

However, if anything goes wrong with the male body you own, my advice is to put it in the shop.

OR IF YOU can't afford the repairs, find some place out of the weather and jack it up on blocks.

Undoubtedly, however, there are some owners who are genuinely interested in how the body works and who, if they hear a strange pinging noise, pride themselves on being able to tell you that it is coming from the cardiovascular system or wherever.

If you have any curiosity about inguinal hernias, you may find this section worthwhile.

IN GENERAL, male body-owners likely will be most enlightened by the final section of the manual, which contains a brief outline of the nomenclature and operation of the female body.

As noted above, the female body is somewhat more durable. But the manual may dissuade you from trading in your male body for a female model.

The female body's interior mechanism looks like something engineered by Rube Goldberg. And the maintenance costs are absolutely frightful.

'Don't teach for tests'

I look at the school-by-school Iowa Test averages for 1976-1977 for Elk Grove Twp. Dist. 59 and I see Mark Hopkins School very low on the list. I see a school board that ignored the request of many Hopkins parents to have their own children's scores excluded from this average. These parents were strong in their feeling that Iowa averages do not reflect a school's effectiveness.

I look at Mark Hopkins School and I see a small friendly school with a staff that cares about each child. I see classroom teachers, aides and specialized teachers who put tremendous energy into meeting the needs and abilities of each child. I see a principal who knows the children in his school and strives to maintain high educational standards while meeting the needs of all children.

Contrary to the inferences of the low scores, I see children who can read, add, subtract — even multiply and divide! And they do it very well!

I also see some children with special emotional problems and teachers working to overcome them. I challenge any person to teach reading or math to a child whose personal problems have overwhelmed him.

Next time the Board decides to compare schools, I wish to see a column next to the Iowa averages for "percentage of teacher caring," and one for "percentage of children's needs being met." Absurd? Of course. The things that make quality education can not be measured in numbers. If you want to judge a school, visit it, talk to its staff, talk to its children, talk to its parents — parents who wish to stay in the neighborhood because they are so pleased with Mark Hopkins and its present staff and the education it offers.

I hope our teachers will not begin to teach for the Iowa tests, for then valuable time will be wasted and I feel the quality of education will go down, even though test scores may go up.

Words of praise

We have been reading your newspaper ever since we moved into the area in 1968 and we have seen a lot of changes. I want to tell you that my husband and I are impressed by the improvement of the coverage of local, national as well as international news which is unusual for a local paper to cover such a wide range of detailed news. We also like your sports section quite well; to inform us enough about the local activities as well as the professional sports.

We have also seen a lot of changes in newspaper boys, but nobody served us better than the girl who delivers our paper now. Laura Czaja has not missed a delivery even during the bitter cold winter months. She is a very conscientious girl and we appreciate her job very much.

Keep up the good work with The Herald.

I WAS HAPPY to see the front page story John Frank wrote on the Buffalo Grove Jaycees and our search for new members and ideas in the June 6 edition of The Herald. I think that John did an excellent job in giving a clear and accurate summary of the interview I had with him. He covered the important points I wanted brought out and did a superb job in quoting me accurately.

With professional reporting and cooperation like this from The Herald, I am looking forward to very pleasant Jaycee-Herald working relationships for the next 12 months.

Worthy of note

On April 1, my wife collapsed on our floor in our home, gasping for breath and very near death. I called the Elk Grove Police Station and asked for the paramedics and "two minutes" later the paramedics, police and firemen all roared up to our house.

The quick action of these men and in particular the paramedics saved my wife's life.

How can I possibly thank all of those involved, including the emergency ward at St. Alexius Hospital, where my wife later was taken.

Just let my letter of thanks to all these above people be known to everyone. My family of four children would be without a mother if it were not for these great people.

Soviet, U.S. talks more planned this time

Time has come for Soviets to show cards in arms race

by ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Harold M. Agnew, director of the Los Alamos Scientific Institute, has quietly disclosed something that seems bizarre bordering on the incredible. But since he is the chairman of the General Advisory Committee of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency it is hard to believe he doesn't know what he is talking about.

What Agnew is talking about is that, from the beginning of our negotiations with the Soviet Union on nuclear arms, the United States has been providing factual information about the range and numbers of weapons under discussion while the Soviets refuse such information on the range and number of their weapons under discussion.

How one-sided can such a crucial negotiation be allowed to be?

AGNEW REVEALS this strange state of affairs in these words:

"Typically, arms control negotiations at present are based solely on information supplied by the United States. Usually, Soviet negotiators refer to U.S. estimates of the number of their weapons systems, and they refer to them by NATO code names."

Agnew doesn't like this one bit and he contends: "The Soviets should discuss their systems, using their own terminology, not ours. They should provide their own numbers — whether force levels, or, when appropriate, performance characteristics."

I should think so.

IN LAY TERMS, Agnew is reporting that the Soviets negotiate only on the basis of American estimates of what weapons systems and in what numbers they have and are producing. They do not negotiate on the basis of what they kno wthey possess and are producing.

We tell them the facts on our side; they tell us nothing.

Our figures on Soviet military strength may be right or they may be wrong. The Russians never admit whether they are accurate or inaccurate. More importnat, whatever agreement is reached is based on what our intelligence hopes are the facts, not on what the Soviets know are the facts on their side. You can depend on it that, if our intelligence underestimates the size and numbers of Soviet weapons, they are not likely to correct the es mates on the basis of the facts.

AGREEMENTS BASED on such a one-sided negotiating process can be dangerously risky.

This picture of the SALT negotiating procedure is contained in a memorandum that Agnew prepared for the White House on what needs to be done to strengthen verification. Extracts from it appeared recently in Aviation Weekly and Space Technology.

His first proposition — and he puts it very mildly but obviously means it very deeply — is that "the time has come for the Soviets to be more forthcoming."

I don't see how we can safely continue to negotiate on such a one-sided basis. I have discussed Agnew's memorandum with officials on the Arms Control and Disarmanent Agency, and they agree that he describes the situation accurately.

They believe this procedure should not continue, and in the negotiations so far this year they have taken the position that a factual "data base" must be provided by both sides.

I do not see how any acceptable agreements can be made unless both sides are prepared to provide the same kind of negotiating information.

by JOSEPH C. HARSCH

The most interesting thing about the second round of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe, which opened last week in Belgrade, is that both the American and Soviet delegations have done their homework more carefully than they did for the first round two years ago in Helsinki.

The American delegation has been beavering away for months now, gathering material on violations by Soviets and East European governments of human rights and other promises made at Helsinki. The Soviets have likewise been beavering away at real or imaginary violations by governments on the Western side of the divide. They are both doing their homework as they never did back in 1975 — because neither of them realized at that time what a big thing "human rights" would turn out to be.

To the Soviets of two years ago the Helsinki conference was the place where they were going to get general acceptance by everyone concerned of the present frontiers in Eastern Europe. They wanted that so much that they were prepared to promise a lot of things to get it. But it seems not to have occurred to them at the time that the promises would become a serious problem for them in their relations with Western Europe, with their own satellites of Eastern Europe and even inside the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics itself.

TO THE AMERICAN delegation run by Sec. of State Henry Kissinger, the promises in the area of "human rights" were window dressing. Kissinger was willing to confirm the frontiers of Eastern Europe as a step along the road of his "detente" with Moscow. He expected his quid pro quo in other areas — perhaps in the form of Soviet restraint in the Middle East. But "Basket Three," the section of the "final act" of the conference which dealt with human rights, was to Kissinger in those days a "basket case."

Well — here we are two years later and Basket Three is anything but a basket case. It has caused all kinds of trouble inside the frontiers of the Warsaw Pact. Czechs, Romanians, even the Poles, have been hustling into jails persons who have been keeping the books on the violations by their governments of the promises all of them made at Helsinki to permit a free flow of information across their borders, and permit freedom of political expression by their people. Arrests have been frequent in Moscow and more are expected. A general suppression of dissent seems to be the order of the day.

There is always a reaction to waves of suppression. Internal dissent can be smothered for a time. But every wave of suppression inside the Soviet Union damages every Communist party outside the Warsaw Pact area and Moscow's propaganda position in the world. The price of suppressing dissent inside is a bad image outside. This is a dilemma into which Moscow has been pushed by Basket Three.

MORE THAN THAT, a bad record of violating the human rights provisions of the Helsinki document inevitably revives the question of those frontiers. If Moscow is to repudiate part of the Helsinki accord then the whole could come unstuck. And any reopening of the frontiers of Eastern Europe would be a sheer horror to the Kremlin.

Perhaps some persons inside the Kremlin begin to wonder whether Joseph Stalin was wise to grab all that territory around his frontiers, which he did grab in 1945. It was a moment when Soviet armies were spread far beyond the prewar frontiers of the Soviet Union. Stalin helped himself to various Japanese islands and a huge piece of China on one side. He gathered in the Baltic states, East Prussia, and a slice of Poland, and a slice of Finland, and a slice of Romania, and a small bit of Czechoslovakia on the other. And no one forgets those things.

Moscow has already had to disgorge one big piece of those 1945 gatherings of Stalin. The Chinese insisted that the Soviets get out of Manchuria, Inner Mongolia and Sinkiang. They did, within two years after Stalin's death. But they have never yet given up another inch of their spoils of war from 1945. And they seemed at Helsinki two years ago to think that the documents signed there would put to rest any doubts about the European frontiers.

But did they? Why should the frontiers be fixed forever if Moscow fails to pay the price agreed for the validity of those frontiers?

Nothing is going to be settled at Belgrade this week. The diplomats are gathered there only to set up schedules and formulate rules and regulations for round three of Helsinki to come somewhere else later this year.

But behind the talks in Belgrade is the plain fact that Moscow is finding it painful to pay the price agreed at Helsinki for general recognition of Stalin's frontiers. Yet how can those frontiers be firm if the price for them is not paid? Yet to pay the price would be to permit dissent throughout all the Kremlin's lands. And to permit dissent could lead to — anything.

After all, there was first only the Grand Duchy of Moscow. At the time of Columbus it was only about three hundred miles across.

Special education not a 'frill'

In following a couple of past editorials regarding the controversy over keeping special education in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, I would like to add some support in keeping it in our schools.

The education provided by these special education classes is not a "frill." It is a basic education for children who are unable to learn to read, write and calculate in the regular classroom. Without this special help, the right of handicapped children to learn the same basic skills as the other children will have been denied. We do not want to return to the days when handicapped children sat in the back of the classroom and did busy work because they could not learn like the other children.

I have an 11-year-old son who was enrolled in Dist. 59 in March of this year. My son is one of those so-called handicapped children that would be sitting in the back of the classroom had it not been for the special education program provided by Dist. 59 and the modern times of today.

Columbo will gave Patty only $5,000

Patricia Columbo stood to inherit only $5,000 of her family's estate, and her brother the bulk of the estate.

But the jury may not learn this fact unless Judge R. Eugene Pincham decides to allow the testimony of the Columbo family's probate attorney, Charles E. Whelan, of Arlington Heights.

The will was drawn up in 1975, reportedly in response to Miss Columbo's love affair with Frank DeLuca, then a married father of five children. The family had disapproved of their daughter's relationship with DeLuca.

The prosecution wants to show that Miss Columbo, 21, and DeLuca, 39, charged with the May 4, 1976, murders of her parents and brother, murdered them partly so she could be the lone heir of the family estate and her family's $100,000 life insurance policy.

ALGIS BALIUNAS, Cook County assistant state's attorney, Monday said, "A fair reading of that (will) would certainly indicate a motive on the part of Patricia Columbo to eliminate Michael Columbo."

Miss Columbo's brother, Michael, 13, was to receive the bulk of the Columbo inheritance. No value of the estate was given.

LAURENCE ACKER, Cook County assistant public defender for Miss Columbo, called the will "highly irrelevent and prejudicial."

The jury was not present for the discussion of the will.

In other developments at the trial, a finger print expert testified DeLuca's prints were on a dossier allegedly written to help a hit man murder two state witnesses.

JOSEPH W. MORTIMER testified he identified DeLuca's fingerprints on the dossier to be used to murder Hubert Green, 28, of 122 Boardwalk Ave., Elk Grove Village, and Joy Heysek, 37, of Hoffman Estates, both former employes of a drug store managed by DeLuca. They have testified DeLuca admitted killing the Columbos.

DeLuca allegedly dictated the dossier to Clifford X. Childs, 29, a former cellmate of his at Cook County Jail.

Childs had testified he never intended to kill the witnesses, and duped DeLuca into bailing him out of jail. He said he testified in exchange for a promise of leniency from prosecutors on three armed robbery charges.

Stanton Bloom, DeLuca's defense attorney, Monday completed his cross-examination of Childs, who admitted he would lie to obtain his freedom.

Prosecutors today are expected to rest their case against Miss Columbo and DeLuca. Defense attorneys then will begin calling their witnesses.

RTA officials lend ears to transit suggestions

by JEFF TRIMBLE

Mrs. George Boehringer is an Arlington Heights resident who wants bus service to the Randhurst and Woodfield shopping centers.

Mrs. Dorothy Roegner says she can't get around Prospect Heights without a car and believes that full-day service on existing bus lines would help her plight.

Those were just two of the many comments Regional Transportation Authority representatives heard Monday, the first day of their "Listening Post" program and other efforts to solicit suggestions on RTA service from area commuters.

RTA REPRESENTATIVES' "Listening Post" was at the Arlington Heights village hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Monday from 10 a.m. until noon. They also attended a picnic for the local chapter of the American Assn. of Retired Persons to issue half-fare cards and hear suggestions from area senior citizens on RTA service.

The representatives discussed possible new bus lines for the Northwest suburbs, while other RTA officials meeting downtown considered cutting area service because of budget shortages.

The Arlington Heights post was the first in a series of six locations for the program, said Robert Hurrie, director of RTA's area affairs office for suburban Cook County in Des Plaines.

Hurrie said the listening post and events like the picnic will be important sources of feedback for RTA officials on how the system is working.

"IT'S ONE THING to sit downtown, but it's another to come here and answer questions," he said. "When we're done here, this information will go in memo form to RTA planners. They can then contact people with answers to their questions about RTA."

Hurrie was pleased with the turnout Monday at village hall, when seven area residents phoned or stopped by with questions or suggestions.

"What I'd like to see come out of this is someone coming in and saying 'Have you ever thought about this?,' then transferring the idea downtown for a reaction," he said.

Hurrie said his job also will entail meeting Northwest suburban village officials to discuss RTA.

After the morning session, Hurrie, administrative aide Laurie Fox and RTA travel information director Dave Rosanova went to the picnic at the home of Mrs. Fred Hartman, 816 N. Gibbons Rd., Arlington Heights.

THE RTA representatives issued 25 half-fare cards and listened to the group's comments.

"Senior citizens have to depend on their children or taxis to get them places," Mrs. Hartman said.

Other group members agreed and said a more extensive system of buses in the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect area is needed. One member suggested a special service for groups to the new Wheeling Township Hall, 1616 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

The seniors also were happy about the discount fare cards.

"I never took the time to apply," said Prospect Heights resident Jessie Clawes. "But when I heard they were coming here, I was glad to get one."

"I'm a busy lady," Mrs. Clawes said. "But a service like this makes it easy."

HURRIE HOPES TO continue the listening posts and services for groups.

"We're still in the development stage now, but we hope to schedule listening posts through the summer," he said.

Other listening posts planned are Evanston, June 27; Schaumburg, July 5; Glenview, July 11; Barrington, July 18, and Glencoe, July 25. The posts will be open from 10 a.m. until noon at the village halls. The Evanston pos wil be at the mayor's office in city hall.

Tight RTA budget may cut route

nate all new service proposed for both suburban bus lines and commuter railroads.

Routes affected would be the commuter feeder service in Rolling Meadows and Palatine, the feeder service from Elk Grove Village to Jefferson Park in Chicago, feeder service from Elk Grove Village to the Milwaukee Road train station in Bensenville, as well as a proposed route to Harper College. All were scheduled to start in fiscal 1978, which begins July 1.

The cutbacks also would eliminate virtually all construction projects and equipment purchases, as well as a bus rehabilitation program. On the CTA, officials are estimating the austerity budget may result in a 15 per cent service cut and a 10 cent fare hike.

"They (suburban board members) seem to think the CTA is going to be the only one hurt," O'Malley said. He said the entire system will suffer and predicted suburban residents will force the suburban directors to reconsider their position on the gas tax.

Richard Newland of Waukegan, however, said the suburban members can live with the austerity budget until the fall legislative session begins in Springfield. "Hopefully they will be convinced. Then the differential gas tax is the only way out," he said.

Future of Woodfield bus on skids

by MARK BALDWIN

Monday afternoon passengers seemed pleased with the new Des Plaines to Woodfield bus route and were disappointed when they found out the two-day-old service soon may be canceled.

"I'd go to Woodfield more often if there was always a bus going there," said Mrs. Dorothy Semrau of Park Ridge. "I'd be disappointed if they cut it."

"This is certainly convenient," said Arvid Grinbergs of Des Plaines. "But if they get rid of it, I can always drive."

JIM MILLIGAN of Palatine said the Regional Transportation Authority should wait before eliminating the new bus line.

"If they find out in six months it's no good, then they should revise, reduce or eliminate the route," he said. "It hasn't had a chance to prove itself yet. It would be grossly unfair to eliminate a new route."

For some people, the bus service is a must.

"I'm a widow and I don't drive," said Mrs. Blanche Weldon of Des Plaines. "I go everywhere on the bus."

Mrs. Weldon said the Woodfield route is too new to be cut. "They should give it a chance," she said.

MRS. WELDON said she quit driving in order to save energy. "I gave up my car for energy," she said. "When you go down to the Loop, you see hundreds and hundreds of cars with only one driver. That really wastes energy."

Mrs. Jessie Staller of Des Plaines said the bus service to Woodfield is important to her because she does not drive.

"If we want to come out during the day we have to go on the bus. At night, if I got in a tough spot, my husband could drive me where I had to go," Mrs. Staller said.

Mrs. Staller said she has looked forward to the new route for a long time.

Nancy Schreiber, 13, of Mount Prospect, said the Woodfield bus comes in handy for her. "It's sure better than having your parents drive you wherever you want to go," she said.

HER COMPANION, 14-year-old Julie Flanagan, also from Mount Prospect, said the Woodfield bus service was "great. We'd go out there a lot but we can never get a ride."

The bus driver Monday afternoon wished to remain anonymous. He said most bus drivers feel the new route will not be effective because of a number of scheduling problems.

He said his four Monday morning runs from Des Plaines to Woodfield had a total of only nine passengers. "One driver yesterday told me he had 60 in three trips," he said.

"This new bus is free for the first two weeks so everybody and his brother will ride," the driver said. "This route wasn't advertised very well in advance so not many people knew about it. Now it will spread by word of mouth."

Joseph DiJohn, executive director of the North Suburban Mass Transit District, Monday said "about 150 people rode the new bus Sunday — which isn't bad."

Hospitals ask budget hike to pay for new equipment

Cook County hospitals Monday asked the County Board for $8.5 million more than is in the current budget, to help retain accreditation.

Dr. James G. Haughton, executive director of the Cook County Health and Hospitals Governing Commission, said the money must be spent on equipment and medical services rather than on repaying the hospitals' $9 million deficit as now required by the budget.

The unprecedented move to reopen the county budget met with immediate skepticism from County Board Pres. George W. Dunne, who questioned the legality of changing an adopted budget.

"You must be able to perform the miracle of the loaves and the fishes," Dunne told Haughton in response to Haughton's suggestion that the hospitals "don't want to spend more money, they just want to spend it differently."

HAUGHTON ASKED the county board to increase the bottom line of the Cook County hospitals' budget from $169 million to $177.5 million. But he said he was not asking for an additional tax increase.

"If we knew you had money available, there probably would not have been an increase in the tax rate for you at all," Dunne said, referring to the 10 per cent property tax increase for the hospitals that was approved by the county board in February. The Health and Hospitals Governing Commission tax rate was increased from 20 to 22 cents per $100 assessed valuation, which means that a person whose home is assessed at $10,000 now pays $22 a year for the operation of the Cook County hospitals.

Cook County, Oak Forest and Cermak hospitals are up for reaccreditation this year by the joint commission on the accreditation of hospitals.

"We have a whole shopping list of things we must do before then, Haughton said.

"We are not talking about office equipment or remodeling. These are things that people need for health care."

He cited needs for new X-ray, and intensive care equipment as examples.

THE HOSPITALS' $9 million deficit built up for more than 2 years and it is "unfair" to expect the hospitals to pay it off in just one year's budget," Haughton said.

But Dunne said continuing deficits could put Cook County in a financial crisis similar to New York City.

"To spend more money you have to have more money and however magical Dr. Haughton's powers I just don't see it. If they continue with deficits and then decide to walk away from it, the taxpayers of Cook County will be stuck with the bill," he said.

Haughton said the hospitals want to spend about $6 million of the $8.5 million they are seeking on health care. The remaining $2.5 million would go toward debt retirement.

COMR. MARY McDONALD, a frequent critic of Cook County hospitals, suggested if the hospitals now expect to have extra money to spend, the county board should abate the 2-cent property tax increase, adopted in February.

Dunne and other board members said a 1970 opinion by former State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan indicates that it would be illegal to alter an adopted budget except in the case of an extreme emergency. But hospital officials said they think the legal obstacles could be overcome.

Both sides will get legal opinions from their attorneys before discussion of the request continues.

WHETHER IT'S a three-piece suit for a man or a gaucho with matching jacket for his partner, fashions from The Outpost have prices that will please. Don Parenti, Roselle, models brand name matching blazer, vest and trousers now advertised elsewhere for $91 but selling for $56.70 at The Outpost. The $17 shirt can be purchased for $8.90. Linda Kurz, Schaumburg, chooses a $58 ensemble selling at The Outpost for $37.70.

by MARIANNE SCOTT

Not low priced clothing but good clothing at low prices is what customers can find on the racks at the brand name clothing discount stores cropping up all over the Northwest suburbs.

A relatively new type of business outlet in the Midwest (they've been popular in the East for several years are are often unadvertised subsidiaries of large companies), these brand name discount stores are not the usual discount operations selling everything from luggage to lumber and sweaters to sweepers.

They specialize in brand name clothing which they do not advertise by name, but sell at discounts up to 60 per cent or more from the price of the same item sold in department and specialty stores.

ON A RECENT shopping tour I found labels of Jack Winter, Bobbie Brooks, Jantzen, Cole of California, Rosanna, Cos Cob, Collage and designer labels of Vera, Halston, Anne Klein, Oleg Cassini, Diane Von Furstenberg and John Kloss, to name just a few of the manufacturers of women's wear. Van Heusen, Arrow, Hathaway, Pierre Cardin, MacGregor and private labels of stores like Lord and Taylor are a few of the men's lines to be found in the discounts.

Although some manufacturers request that their labels be removed, the merchandise can often be recognized by shoppers who know their brands. Stores that normally carry labels may advertise a garment with missing label as a special bargain; chances are it is a bargain but you have to know your brands and pricing, and also shop around to determine if this is so. It may also simply be merchandise from a manufacturer that does not allow labels in some or all of the discounts.

As in shopping department and specialty stores, many of the labels in the discounts are familiar, but many more are not — unless you are in the business. Where the unfamiliar labels fit into the quality scale varies up and down, as it does in all stores, and as in all shopping, recognizing quality is helpful.

Where does this merchandise come from and how can these discounts sell the same merchandise sold at higher prices in department and specialty stores?

Exact sources are rather hush hush and no definite answers are given. Because department stores and manufacturers' salesmen are unhappy with the discount operations, the discounts try to keep a low profile and not make waves.

Explained one discount manager, "We buy direct from the manufacturer." "We have a good relationship with manufacturers. We're an escape valve," said another. Others offer that the merchandise comes from "a middleman," or "we have an arrangement."

The merchandise is described as "manufacturers' overruns," or in layman's language, what's left over after the department and specialty stores have placed their orders. It is also described as over-production, samples, discontinued styles, missed deliveries or merchandise that is creating a space problem for the manufacturer. None, according to the discount managers, is of inferior, usual discount quality.

SOME STORES such as Marshall's in the Mount Prospect Plaza, which carries a large inventory of name brand merchandise, also carries irregulars which are clearly marked on the price tags. The irregularities — wrong sizing, slight snags or other flaws, usually defy detection, according to Marshall's. "Merchandise that does not quite meet the manufacturer's very high standards," explains Roger Barilani, manager.

A large chain operating out of Woburn, Mass., Marshall's carries women's, men's and children's apparel as well as sheets, towels and other housewares. It also sells men's, women's and children's shoes.

Men's and women's clothing also carried in The Midwest Outpost, Branded Apparel Outlet, a business that originated three years ago in the Northwest suburbs with a store in Wheeling of which Joe Mocca is owner-manager. It now has a store in Hoffman Estates with Carlo Reina as owner-manager, as well as stores in St. Louis.

While The Outpost has a wide selection of merchandise, it specializes in brand name jeans for men and women. On regular women's clothing, the store is heavier on junior sizes than misses sizes.

SHOW OFF, a privately owned store in Northpoint Shopping Center, Arlington Heights, states that 30 per cent of its merchandise is in misses sizes. Show Off opened seven months ago and has sought to maintain the image of a neighborhood store. The manager, Robert Dushan, is proud that all labels are left in the clothing. "We offer high value in all lines," said Dushan. The store also carries men's tops.

Mesh weaves cool it for summer

For casual wear, mesh weave shirt tops with the "dish cloth" look are in for summer.

This practical, warm-weather fabric is being shown in smartly styled garments such as Collageman's drawstring blouson shirt of acrylic and silk. The body is horizontally striped and set off with bright red and yellow stripe trim at the top of the sleeves and wrists, as well as at the bottom of the shirt.

Also, the garment is topped off with a hood, a popular fashion feature this season. A practical one, I might add, on sunny or breezy days.

READERS ASK:

Dear Mr. Juster: I have noticed the ads on Indian madras plaid sportcoats and was thinking of getting one.

However, a friend of mine said they will be out by next year. This makes me wonder if it's smart to get one. — C.F.

There are certain classics in men's fashions that are seldom out of style, and Indian madras is one of them.

Jackets of this fabric may vary in popularity over the years, but you will never need hesitate wearing one. It's a perennial favorite.

Dear Mr. Juster: I'm tired of playing valet to my husband. He depends on me to lay out his clothes each day and won't buy a stitch without me. He says he is not "up" on men's fashions and prefers leaving it to me. I say this is asking too much of a wife! — Mrs. T. N.

Maybe so, but look at it this way — if the knack of dressing well doesn't happen to be one of his strong points, isn't it much better to have him want your help rather than be the kind of mate who resents his wife's assistance on clothes?

Want to look better? Send 10 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Harry Juster, in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, and ask for the leaflet "Dress Pointers."

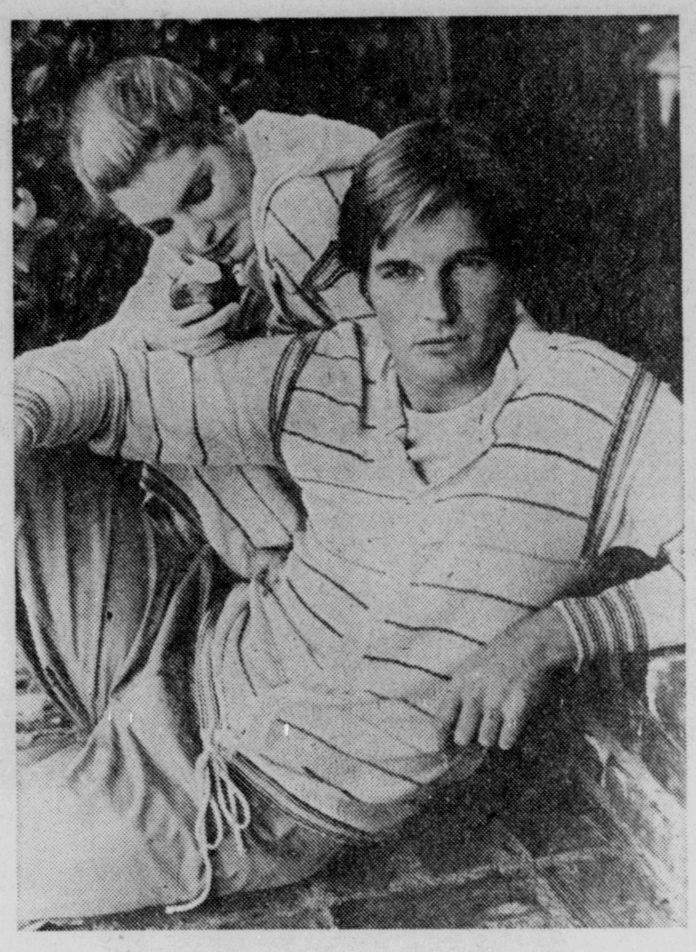
E.W., please note — Unusual wear at the tip of your shoes is a tip-off that the shoes may be too short. Check your shoe size.

Dear Mr. Juster: We are invited to a garden wedding. It's not a formal affair, so I plan to wear a navy and white cord sport jacket with navy slacks. My wife is afraid the jacket might be too casual looking. What do you think? — G. R. M.



Harry Juster

Look smart

Too casual? For an informal garden wedding, a dressup sportswear outfit is very much in order. Your jacket and slacks with a coordinating shirt and tie fit into that category perfectly.

brand name discounts in the area, owners Jill and Jim Thornton advise that labels are left in 90 per cent of their merchandise. Those left out are done so at the request of the manufacturer.

Jill, who does her own buying in New York City, got into the clothing business through her father who was with White Stag and has now retired to the discount clothing business in Atlanta. Jill and Jim also have a store in Northbrook and are opening one in Naperville.

The Thorntons take pride in being able to coordinate ensembles for women. They carry a large line of misses sizes, including tennis, golf and ski wear. "We have saleswomen, not stock girls, to help the customers," said Jill.

A BRAND NAME discount store carrying men's and women's golf and tennis wear exclusively is The Swinging Set in Plaza de las Flores, Algonquin Road, Schaumburg.

Managed by Linda Deloye, the store offers fashions bearing labels of designers and famous sports figures. All labels are left in the garments. The owners also have a store in Milwaukee and do their own buying.

Hit or Miss, which operates nearly 150 stores in the country, has 17 stores in the Chicago area with plans to open eight more in the fall. Louise Linari, manager of the Des Plaines store in the Market Place Center, explains that each store is stocked to meet the needs of the shoppers.

The Des Plaines store, she said, is big on junior lines while the Northbrook store carries more misses sizes and styles.

At Hit or Miss, 75 per cent of the labels are cut out. "We're able to give greater discounts with labels removed," stated Louise.

MANY OF the area discounts are not unlike specialty stores with merchandise arranged in an attractive manner and with carpeting on the floor. Sizes, too, can run the gamut, and some carry accessories. Only the lower price tags mark the difference. In most cases, the price at which the garment sells in department stores is listed along with the discount price.

FOR AN EVENING at home or on the town Teresa Ralph, Mount Prospect, is comfortably dressed in a $9.99 flower garden print that retails for $46. The gown is from Hit or Miss, a 10-year-old chain out of Boston with 145 stores west to the Mississippi.

Some tags even state that the department store price has been verified. Others cross out the retail price, adding their own lower price. One area store lists only the discount price. Sales and clearances will lower price tags even further.

As in department stores, not all manufacturers are represented in all discount stores, and stock arrives almost daily, which can keep the dedicated bargain hunter busy.

Discounts also vary in return merchandise policies and in charge plate acceptance. But all report a growing business and shoppers seem pleased. After all, what woman doesn't like a bargain?

The old maxim "You get what you pay for" may be going out of style.

Beauty tips

Youngsters, friends and company can have a cool Honey 'n Spice Shake to shake up summer tastes. Just beat two-thirds cup vanilla ice cream with two tablespoons honey, one-fourth teaspoon each of cinnamon and nutmeg and one and one-half cups of cold milk until the mixture is thick and frothy. Pour into two tall (12-ounce) glasses and add a scoop of vanilla or peach ice cream for great sipping.

Proceeds will go to the National Arthritis Foundation for research and treatments. In case of rain, the date is July 10.

Lawrence E. Lamb

The doctor says

Reformed alcoholic lacks sex interest

I am a 35-year-old male. I was an alcoholic for 11 years and finally came to grips with it nine months ago. I went through a horrible case of the D.T.s which I hope has put the fear of the Lord in me for the remainder of my existence.

I am being treated by a very fine doctor who has me on Librium. But since stopping alcohol with the D.T.s I have a total lack of libido.

Tell me the truth, will it ever return? Or have I caused irreparable damage to my body? Otherwise I am in excellent health, including being mentally alert and feeling better than I can ever remember.

My weight dropped from 211 to 150 pounds during this period. My blood pressure averages 120 over 70 and I feel like a young man.

You are a young man. And there is a good chance that your interest in sex and sexual responses will return to normal.

Part of this will depend upon how much damage you may have done to your liver. Eleven years of alcoholism is a real insult to the body. The liver has an important role in eliminating estrogens and maintaining a proper balance between male and female hormones.

You should know that alcohol has a direct effect on the testicles, resulting in a decrease in male hormone production. In a study of men who consume an equivalent of one and one-fourth pints of 80 proof whiskey a day for four weeks, Dr. Gary Gordon of New York Medical College found a 21 to 50 per cent decrease in testosterone production. And the testosterone in the blood stream was more rapidly removed.

Your weight loss has also been a factor. Men in starvation situations lose all interest in sex. I do not mean to imply your loss of weight is bad — it is good, but I doubt that your body has completed its readjustment.

I am sending you the Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer, to give you a broader picture of the bad effects of alcohol on the human body. Others who want this issue may send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to Post Office Box 1881, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. You may wish to share this information with other people who have a drinking problem and have not been as successful as you in overcoming it. Congratulations.

I am a radio broadcaster and in my work I use headphones every day. Through the years I've noticed it's been necessary for me to boost the volume of the phones — bit by bit. I'm worried the phones are damaging my hearing and yet I have to use them in my work. How harmful are headphones to the ears?

The headphones are not harmful — it is the sound that comes out of them. If the noise level is low enough, it should not harm your ears. But if you have high intensity noise exposure regularly, it will induce ear damage.

Of course, you may be having changes in your hearing that are completely unrelated to your headphones. I would suggest that you see an ear, nose and throat specialist and have your hearing checked. You may have a completely different condition that he can help you with.

She finds Silly Putty on skirt is no joke

Dear Dorothy: Recently, my 5-year-old thought it would be "neat" to stick a wad of Silly Putty on a nearly new, 100 per cent polyester boucle knit shirt. The stuff doesn't freeze like gum, nor will it wash out. What can I do? — Kathi Ferris.

Even if it won't freeze, chilling it ought to make it easier to get off as much as possible with the dull side of a knife. The best method then is to lay the fabric face down on paper towels and sponge with amyl acetate. Try on an inconspicuous spot first to see that it doesn't harm the fabric. Amyl acetate and acetone are often used to get off the same kinds of stains although amyl acetate is recommended for acetate, Arnel, Dynel and Verel — and acetone on other fabrics. If you see this isn't working, try a good cleaning solvent, using the same method.

Dear Dorothy: My husband and I are trying to do some of the home-decorating jobs and we're wondering if there is a specific spot one should start wallpapering so the joining won't show if there is a little mismatching. — Marcia Pittelli

The most skillful paperhanger I ever saw believed in starting over the small area over the doorway going into the room. when he finished it was hard to find any trace of a mismatch.

So many have been asking lately about how to take care of mildew situations, I think it imperative that all these readers write for the U. S. Department of Agriculture bulletin on the subject. It costs 35 cents and is called "How to Prevent and Remove Mildew" — No. 100-E. As are many of the government's publications, this one is distributed by the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Col., 81009.

Weddings

Mary Arvidson— Tom Bartnik Jr.

Wearing her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin and lace, Mary Leanne Arvidson of Hoffman Estates became the bride of Thomas Michael Bartnik Jr. of Milwaukee on May 21. A waist-length veil edged in lace and a cascade bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath, with just a few peach roses in the center, completed her attire.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Arvidson, Mary and her bridegroom exchanged vows and rings at 2:30 p.m. in St. Hubert Church, Hoffman Estates.

Tom's parents are the Thomas M. Bartniks.

AFTER A RECEPTION at Frontier Lodge, Elgin, and a week's honeymoon in the Dakotas, the newlyweds are making their home in Milwaukee. Tom works for the Arandell Corp. in Wauwatosa, since attending Milwaukee Area Technical College. Mary is a graduate of Conant High School and until her marriage worked for S. S. Kresge Co. in Schaumburg.

She had three attendants for the nuptials, Kathryn, her sister, as maid of honor and Karen Ulaszek and Kim Fojtik, both of Hoffman Estates, as bridesmaids.

The girls wore beige gowns printed in delicate peach roses and carried colonial bouquets to match.

Michael Bartnik was his brother's best man, with Geoffrey and Michael Marcouiller of Milwaukee as groomsmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Bartnik Jr.

Nancy Kay Meyer— Jo-Paul Pillion

Bethel Lutheran Church, Palatine, was the setting for the May 7 wedding of Nancy Kay Meyer, daughter of the Robert Meyers of Rolling Meadows, and Jo-Paul Pillion, whose mother is Mrs. Margaret Pillion of Iron Mountain, Mich.

For the 5:30 p.m. candlelight ceremony Nancy had her sister, Jan Bergan of Mount Prospect, as matron of honor. Jan's husband, Bill, was best man.

Bridesmaids were Kathi Gagliano, Schaumburg and the bride's cousin, Lynn Mueller, Arlington Heights; Susan Pillion, the groom's daughter, was junior bridesmaid.

ALSO IN THE wedding party, Stacy Herron, 7, was flower girl and her brother, Chris, 4, was ring bearer. The children live in Rolling Meadows.

The guests were seated by Pat and Tom McCormick of Bensenville.

The couple's reception was held at Lancer's Restaurant, Schaumburg, after which Nancy and Jo-Paul left for a 10-day honeymoon in Hawaii.

They are living in Bensenville. Nancy, a graduate of Forest View High School, works for Henry C. Lytton at Woodfield and her husband is with Anderson Builders, Melrose Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony D. James

Barbara Bragg— Anthony D. James

Southminster Presbyterian Church in Arlington Heights was the setting May 21 for an 11 a.m. double ring service in which Barbara Jane Bragg became the bride of Anthony Daniel James. Barbara is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bragg, Arlington Heights, and Anthony is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony James, Powers Lake, Wis.

A white silk organza gown trimmed in lace and with chapel train was Barbara's choice in wedding gown. A fingertip veil and a bouquet of baby's breath, white daisies and yellow tea roses completed her ensemble.

In pistachio green gowns were the attendants, Betsy, the bride's sister as maid of honor; and her sister, Stacy, and Becky Ballard, St. Louis, Mo., and Mary Pat O'Connell Oak Park, as bridesmaids. The maids carried yellow and white daisies with baby's breath.

THE GROOM'S brother, James, was best man, and James Alley, a brother-in-law from Elgin, Thomas Catino, Palatine, and Michael Taylor, Detroit, Mich., were ushers.

A reception for 175 guests was held at Nordic Hills Country Club after which the newlyweds left on a Colorado honeymoon. They are now residing in Lake Geneva, Wis., where both are employed in nearby Milwaukee. A graduate of Arlington High, Barbara graduated from Columbia College, Columbia, Mo.; Anthony is a graduate of Marquette University, Milwaukee. Barbara is employed by Madison's and Anthony by Josten's.

Lou Grant just traded newsrooms

LOS ANGELES — Lou Grant will walk into the Los Angeles Tribune's newsroom today and begin a new life. A life very different from the one he's known the past seven years on the "Mary Tyler Moore Show."

Lou will be alone this time, removed from the circle of WJM-TV colleagues whose weaknesses, strengths and eccentricities became a passion with the American TV viewing public.

Lou is the only character from the successful half-hour comedy to continue his fictitious adventures in a new environment. And the public probably will find itself in love with Lou Grant more than ever before.

ED ASNER, TALKED about his new, hour-long comedy-drama series which begins production today and will be aired this fall. His gestures and facial expressions are pure Lou Grant, instantly recognizable to any "MTM" fan.

"For seven years on Mary's show Lou Grant was always a viable character. I never got bored with the role. I always found the scripts making good encroachments into Lou Grant's horizons, but I never thought we prostituted the role," said Asner, who added he never had a second thought about continuing the Grant character on a new and different show.

"I thought that the time I would spend in creating a new character would be far better spent putting energy into some wonderful scripts with the character I know well," he said.

Lou Grant will be hired as the city editor of a large metropolitan daily newspaper and will inherit a new circle of friends.

THERE WILL BE managing editor Charlie Hume (played by Mason Adams) a long-time friend of Grant's; Joe Rossi, an aggressive, amoral reporter (Robert Waldon); Carla Mardigian, an Ivy-League and naive female reporter (Rebecca Balding); and a tough editor-and-publisher (Nancy Marshan) who antagonizes Lou in a tongue-and-cheek sort of way.

The only noticeable difference in Lou Grant is that he is about 35 pounds lighter, the result of a liquid protein diet that Asner has been on the past three months. It may give me a romantic look, Asner jokes.

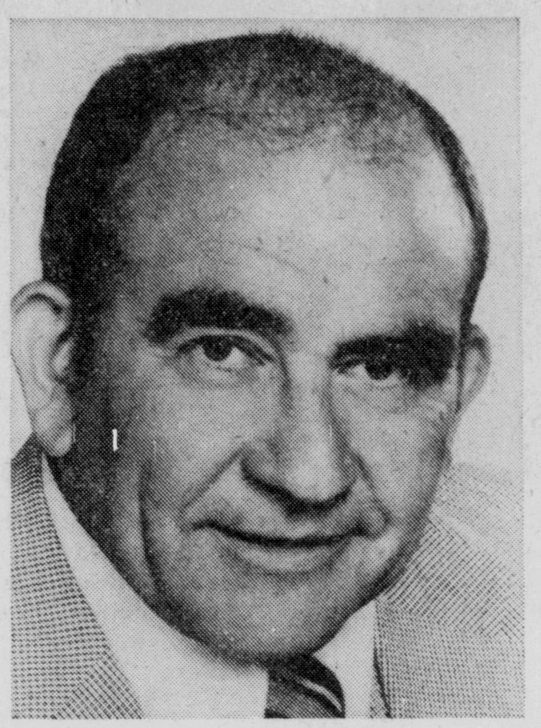
"The character of Lou Grant was very real to most people and many of the stories we did had him in a dramatic line with a little twist of comedy. Well, that's what this show will be like," said Roger Young, associate producer of the show.

"The Lou Grant Show," titled so that people will continue to identify with the character, will be about the newspaper business, but will also delve into Grant's private life outside the office.

WRITERS AND PRODUCERS of the show, and Asner, have been spending time touring city newsrooms and taking notes to give the show's sets and scripts an air of authenticity.

"It seems to me that series in the past based on newspaper reporters have really been about detectives in disguise," said producer Gene Reynolds. "This is a character series about the people who work at the newspaper. It is the story of a man in his 50's who suddenly is fired from his job at a television station in Minneapolis and lands a new job on the West Coast."

The show, which will be scheduled opposite "Police Woman," and "Family" Tuesdays at 9 p.m. is in the ' best of hands," Asner says. Reynolds, James L.



EDWARD ASNER

Brooks and Allan Burns are executive producers of the show. Reynolds was behind the creation and production of "M*A*S*H" while Brooks and Burns formed the duo that gave "The Mary Tyler Moore" show its unique warmth.

"I think there is a universal theme in people wanting to find recognition and expression, people being able to work together and understand each other," Reynolds said. "We're going to try and find the drama and humility in the newspaper business."

ASNER WILL CONTINUE to periodically tackle some purely dramatic roles. He already has portrayed the slave ship captain in "Roots," the strict papa in "Rich Man, Poor Man: Book One" and the role of Huey Long in the television movie, ' The Life and Assassination of the Kingfish."

He has just completed a moving Christmas drama with Maureen Stapleton entitled "The Gathering."

Once solely a theater actor, Asner admitted he first bombed when reading for the part of Lou Grant eight years ago. But, he didn't walk out of the producer's office without giving it a second shot. And the second shot is not over yet.

"I was a feature page editor for the Wyandotte High School Pantogram once and I told my teacher I wanted to be a journalist. He said he wouldn't if I were him, so I became an actor instead," said Asner, who later went on to study acting and perform in Chicago.

Now, Asner has the best of both worlds. "Both deal with the drama of everyday life. I would have loved to have been a newspaper man, and now I will be."

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

• Religious vigilantes come to the aid of Glenn Ford and his family and help repair his storm-damaged church on the "Family Holvak" at 7 p.m. on Channel 2.

• "Police Story" at 9 p.m. on Channel 5 stars Harold Gould in the character study of a veteran cop.

Evaluate corporate citizenship: Kreps

BY DAVID R. FRANCIS and GUY HALVERSON

Corporations, says Commerce Sec. Juanita M. Kreps, should be evaluated by their community spirit as well as their profit level.

An index should be developed that measures a corporation's contributions to the community, including how it treats its employes, its contributions to education and its other private endeavors. Such a measure of corporate performance might encourage companies to strive for achievement in nonprofit areas, she says.

In an interview, Mrs. Kreps also expressed concern whether business investment will be sufficient to propel the economy ahead next year. She expects the administration's tax reform package, promised by Sept. 30, to stimulate plant and equipment spending.

The carefully spoken commerce secretary says the continued unease of business with the Carter administration is explained largely by the fact it is Democratic. "There are fears that it is going to spend too much, tax too much, be insensitive to business needs."

In the abridged interview text that follows, Sec. Kreps talks about her department's efforts to promote women and minorities in business and the necessity for the public to recognize the costs of environmental protection.

How is the economy doing, in your view? Is there a chance of another pause in the economy later in the year?

It is unlikely for there to be a serious pause this year. Most of us have some question marks about next year. We will do all right for the rest of this year, in that unemployment will improve. The numbers that have been coming out have been better than we expected, actually. There was a smaller increase in the wholesale price index and a better performance at the farm price level. The drop in unemployment has been faster than I would have guessed.

What we don't know really about next year is to what extent business investment spending will propel the economy ahead. It looks as though consumer spending, because of the low savings rate, won't rise that much. It would seem that housing starts, construction in general, will not continue to go up at its past rate. So you have to count on really substantial business investment to keep the growth rate going.

Is there anything the government should do to ensure that the economy continues at a high recovery rate next year?

We do really have to continue to try to push the unemployment rate down. We are doing that through a number of spending programs which when they take off will have that impact.

(Also) incentives to business investment have to be attended to. I assume . . . that will be a very important part of the (administration's) tax reform package.

The whole question of business confidence seems to be a continuing problem for the administration. Many businessmen continue to have a deep sense of unease about the Carter administration, even though a good many of the Cabinet members are themselves from business backgrounds. What do you attribute this to, this continuing sense of unease?

It is a series of things, the most important perhaps of which is that we are Democrats, and there is just not a lot of confidence (in Democrats) on the part of business as a group, with notable exceptions. There are fears that the government is going to spend too much, tax too much, be insensitive to business needs.

Those attitudes do not get changed easily. Even though the President and the administration are doing things that business applauds . . . pulling the ($50 tax) rebate, being concerned about inflation, insisting that there be no wage and price controls, being concerned to keep the flow of international trade open as opposed to increased protectionism . . . all of these things which business applauds nevertheless take some time to persuade the business community.

One of your department's divisions is the Office of Minority Enterprise. During the recent recession many firms owned by blacks and other minorities suffered badly, some going out of business. How is the situation now, with the recovery making considerable progress?

Minority businesses are doing better. There has been a strong attempt to provide small minority businesses with the kind of capital and technical assistance that they frequently need. The Small Business Administration has been working on this, too.

What are the main steps the government could take to encourage greater opportunities for women — I'm thinking of Wall Street, the financial community, the opportunities for women to rise from middle echelon levels to higher posts, including corporate boards?

We were talking this morning about the women entrepreneur as opposed to the women executive. With reference to the latter, I looked at the statistics afresh and discovered the latest number I could find indicated that of the top 500 corporations, the Fortune 500, 20 per cent had at least a woman on the board. So say 100 or 500. I would have thought it would be much higher. That figure may be a bit out of date. So you double it, it still is not very much — women altogether as 2.7 per cent of the boards of directors.

What concerns me a bit more, actually, is the slow pace at which women have been able to move up the ranks in business. The explanation is an easy one to come by. Women until very recently were never encouraged to go into business and indeed there was only one entree and that was secretarial and that was where they stayed.

What you have now is a situation which reflects decades, even centuries, of an attitude and a practice which we have only recently tried to change. Now there is a real effort on business's part to promote women, to put them in middle jobs. But there is a rate change beyond which they simply can't go. It is kind of a generational thing.

But it is interesting to speculate on how we can get more women to become entrepreneurs, to become owners and managers of their own business. The President has announced that he would appoint an interagency task force to study what could be done to improve women's enterpreneurial activity, and I will be working on that.

Business has felt that the environmentalists have gone to extremes in their positions, holding up many worthwhile business ventures unnecessarily in areas such as offshore oil and gas, nuclear power, coal mining, etc. Do you have any views on such allegations?

Gee, I wish I thought there was a simple answer to that one.

We are at a stage in history where we are beginning to recognize the cost of the trade-offs. And we have to remember that we are now in a highly industrialized society, with resource constraints that we never had before, and with environmental problems we never had before. In order to take account of those restraints and to reduce that pollution, we have to pay a dear price.

It is such a different game now. I don't think it is because people would be unwilling in the final analysis to pay the price of clean air. It is just that they are not accustomed to having to pay any price for the clean air. And what we have to keep telling the public and the public has to accept is that there is a cost associated with environmental protection and the maintenance of adequate resources for future generations, and those costs are high.

Malpractice suits now hit lawyers

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — Talk about irony: now malpractice suits are backfiring on lawyers.

In recent years no other word could start a professional argument sizzling as fast as "malpractice." To doctors, it was an abomination and a threat, raising their insurance premiums and pushing their fees into an even less popular stratosphere. But to many a lawyer, the rapid rise of malpractice suits — and of the typical settlement — has meant a juicy new financial opportunity.

Now, though, a startling increase is occurring in malpractice suits against lawyers — and the same attorneys who not long ago were advising angry doctors, "Physician, heal thyself," are faced with a new and unpleasant necessity: "Counselor, defend thyself."

Items:

• In Chicago 94 lawyers were sued last year, up from 43 in 1975. As a result, a typical Chicago lawyer who last year paid $158 for $100,000 of malpractice insurance now must pay $233 for the same coverage.

• Juries like those that handed down inordinate damage awards against physicians frequently show no more mercy when dealing with attorneys. Most claims have been settled in the $6,000-$10,000 range, but others have soared into six figures.

• Insurance companies are facing the same distasteful choice that confronted them in the earlier explosion of medical malpractice suits: either end this kind of coverage completely or drastically raise premiums to cover the ever-escalating risks.

THE PROBLEM WITH the whole subject is that no reasonable person would deny an irate patient or client the right to sue his or her doctor or lawyer. Many cases of malpractice are indeed that, and the injured party deserves a legal remedy. Professionals should be no less accountable to their customers than anybody else.

Francis J. McCarthy, general counsel of The Travelers Insurance Company, notes that "as insurance risks expand, as in the case of attorney malpractice, so do insurance expenses. Insurers either can accept or reject the increased risks. When they do accept the risks, a healthy ratio is needed between premiums and claims for both insurers' sales and for those insured."

In other words, the insurance companies are not in business to go broke, either. And their own self-interest which translates into simple business prudence, is matched by insurance regulations requiring them to maintain substantial premium income in funds reserved for future loss payments. The fundamentel rate-making principle is that the advance payment for this year's insurance policy should equal all the expected claims and expenses for that period — though they may not be reported for years to come.

The Travelers executive expressed the hope that the rising legal malpractice suits would "bring home to the lawyers the problems facing insurance companies when their clients win exorbitant awards against the medical profession."

Or put it this way: Take two aspirins, Counselor, and remember that there really is no free lunch.

NOW accounts at banks urged

The Carter administration Monday urged Congress to allow banks throughout the country to offer savings accounts on which customers can also write checks. These are called NOW accounts — for "negotiable order of withdrawal" — and under present federal law they are allowed only in the six New England states. Treasury Sec. Michael Blumenthal told a Senate banking subcommittee the experiment of permitting them in New England has been a success. He urged adoption of an administration bill to allow banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions to offer NOW accounts or their equivalent nationwide. Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns supported the bill. NOW accounts are the equivalent of earning interest on the balance in a checking account.

Woolco signs lease for center

Woolco has signed a long-term lease for 76,000 square feet of space at Kirchoff Road and Meadow Drive, in Rolling Meadows, according to Dean Elliott, vice president of Terracom Development Group, the Des Plaines based agent-owner of the shopping center. In addition to Woolco, the center has an existing Butera Foods and will start construction on 16,000 square feet of speculative space to accommodate smaller users. Woolco and the smaller stores will open in October of this year.

U.S.-British air rights pact near

The United States and Britain are "very close" to settling a sharp dispute over aviation rights that could abruptly halt air service between the two nations on Wednesday, Transportation Sec. Brock Adams said Monday. With the deadline less than 36 hours away, Adams indicated President Carter was taking a personal hand in directing negotiations. If no agreement is reached by 12:01 a.m. EDT Wednesday, the British intend to refuse entry to U.S. airlines and the United States in turn plans to cut off British flights.

First quarter growth at 6.9%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's economy expanded at an annual rate of 6.9 per cent during the first quarter, the fastest growth in a year, the Commerce Dept. reported Monday.

The revision in the real Gross National Product — which measures the country's output of goods and services after adjustment for inflation — was another signal of a full economic recovery from the severe winter weather.

The department had estimated two months ago that the GNP grew at an estimated annual rate of 5.2 per cent during the first three months of this year. Last month, Commerce analysts sharply revised the estimate upward to 6.4 per cent after gathering more complete data.

The final revision released Monday, which incorporated statistics on investment income from abroad, showed the growth rate was actually 6.9 per cent.

It was the largest quarterly gain since the 9.2 per cent increase during the first quarter of 1976.

Growth updates spur stocks to 3.82 point gain

NEW YORK (UPI) — After seesawing earlier in the day, stocks rallied Monday afternoon to register a solid gain in active trading as investors responded to a favorable updating of the economy's growth rate.

Revised Commerce Dept. figures showed the first-quarter Gross National Product rose by 6.9 per cent instead of 6.4 per cent as reported in an earlier revision. In another major revision, the department said corporate profits rose 5.1 per cent instead of the 0.9 per cent increase originally reported.

As a result, the Dow Jones industrial average, which fluctuated much of the day, gained 3.82 points to 924.27, the highest level since it closed at 930.46 on May 20. Although the closely watched average finished unchanged Friday, it climbed 9.66 points over-all last week.

THE DOW JONES utilities average continued to outperform the industrials by reaching another new 1977 high with a 0.26 gain to 114.14. Analysts said the rise in that average indicated investors were convinced interest rates would not rise sharply anytime soon.

On a broader basis than the Dow averages, the New York Stock Exchange common stock index added 0.26 to 54.90 and the average price of a common share rose 15 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues, gained 0.45 to 100.42.

Advances topped declines, 911 to 514, among the 1,882 issues crossing the composite tape.

We're looking for someone with a minimum of 2 years secretarial experience who can type 60 wpm (no shorthand). We want someone personable who can handle a variety of duties in a small personnel office, someone with growth potential.

FRANCHISE DOCUMENTATIONS
IN CORPORATE SECRETARY'S OFFICE
This position requires an accurate typist who has detail aptitude; someone who is meticulous, precise and well organized with a familiarity with world geography. You should be self-motivated with a bent toward quasi-legal work.

SENIOR ACCOUNTING CLERK
IN OUR INTERNATIONAL DIVISION
This position requires someone who will exercise some independent judgment. You must have 1 or 2 years college level accounting education; at least a year's business experience (preferably 2) and be able to operate a typewriter and a ten-key accounting machine.

CREDIT CLERK
FOR OUR ACCOUNTING DEPT.
We need someone with one or two years general business experience in an accounting clerk capacity (preferably 2 years in a credit dept.) with high school courses in bookkeeping, office machine operation and letter writing. You should be able to operate a standard adding machine and a typewriter.

CLERK TYPIST — SALES DEPT
This position requires at least 1 year (preferably 2 to 3) of clerk-typist experience, typing (55 wpm) but no shorthand, a sense of responsibility and reliability. Business college courses would be helpful.

If you fit any of these positions, call Personnel at 866-8800 between 9:00 and 4:30

BUILD YOUR CAREER WITH US
We are a unique company doing unique things. This includes our approach to hiring. Instead of limiting our search to persons with product or industry knowledge, we attempt to locate the best salesperson available, whose past performance and future goals match ours. We then thoroughly train that person in our markets, products and technology. Makes sense, doesn't it? So does our approach to marketing, salaries, incentive compensation, territories, benefits, promotions and other factors. If you have a record of success in tangible sales but feel limited in your current situation, let's talk. Our entire business is involved with concrete, and exciting, versatile, low cost building material. We have a Northern Chicago territory available and are currently scheduling local interviews.

Oakland's victory dampened by Allen

by BOB GALLAS

The beer at Comiskey Park got to A's owner Charley Finley in the sixth inning of his teams 7-1 win over the White Sox Monday night and when the walked into his team's clubhouse for relief, Finley saw Dick Allen in the showers.

It was a shower that cost Allen a week's suspension without pay and may signal the end to the controversial slugger's baseball career.

Allen, apparently unhappy with being benched Monday due to his poor hitting, showered and quietly left the ballpark before the game was over Monday and a furious Finley called a hasty postgame press conference, saying "I don't care if he never plays for this team again."

"I'M SORRY I have to tell the press about this before Dick, but he's not here," raged Finley. "I went along with Dick Allen. I wanted to be the first to work with him. But I was just like all the other suckers."

Allen, who is no stranger to suspensions in his career which has been checked with controversy, was unavailable for comment.

Finley, with his manager Bobby Winkles nodding in agreement, said he talked with Allen before the game and said the A's were going to "platoon" him for a while in light of his 2.40 batting average. Finley said he told Allen to say his shoulder was hurting again "so he wouldn't look bad, but Allen supposedly said "to tell it like it is."

"Dick Allen does not run this ballclub. Only two people run this ballclub — me and Bobby Winkles," said Finley. "I still believe we can win this division. I'm accustomed to producing winning teams but the only we can do that is with people who want to play."

As for the game, the White Sox started to get the idea it wasn't going to be their night in the fourth inning when a fan beat them out of one, possibly two runs. That belief was reaffirmed when the umpires took away two more in the fifth and when they loaded the bases with nobody out but scored only one run in the sixth they were sure.

The loss, which snapped a four-game Chicago win streak, still kept the Sox in first place by percentage points as second place Minnesota lost likewise.

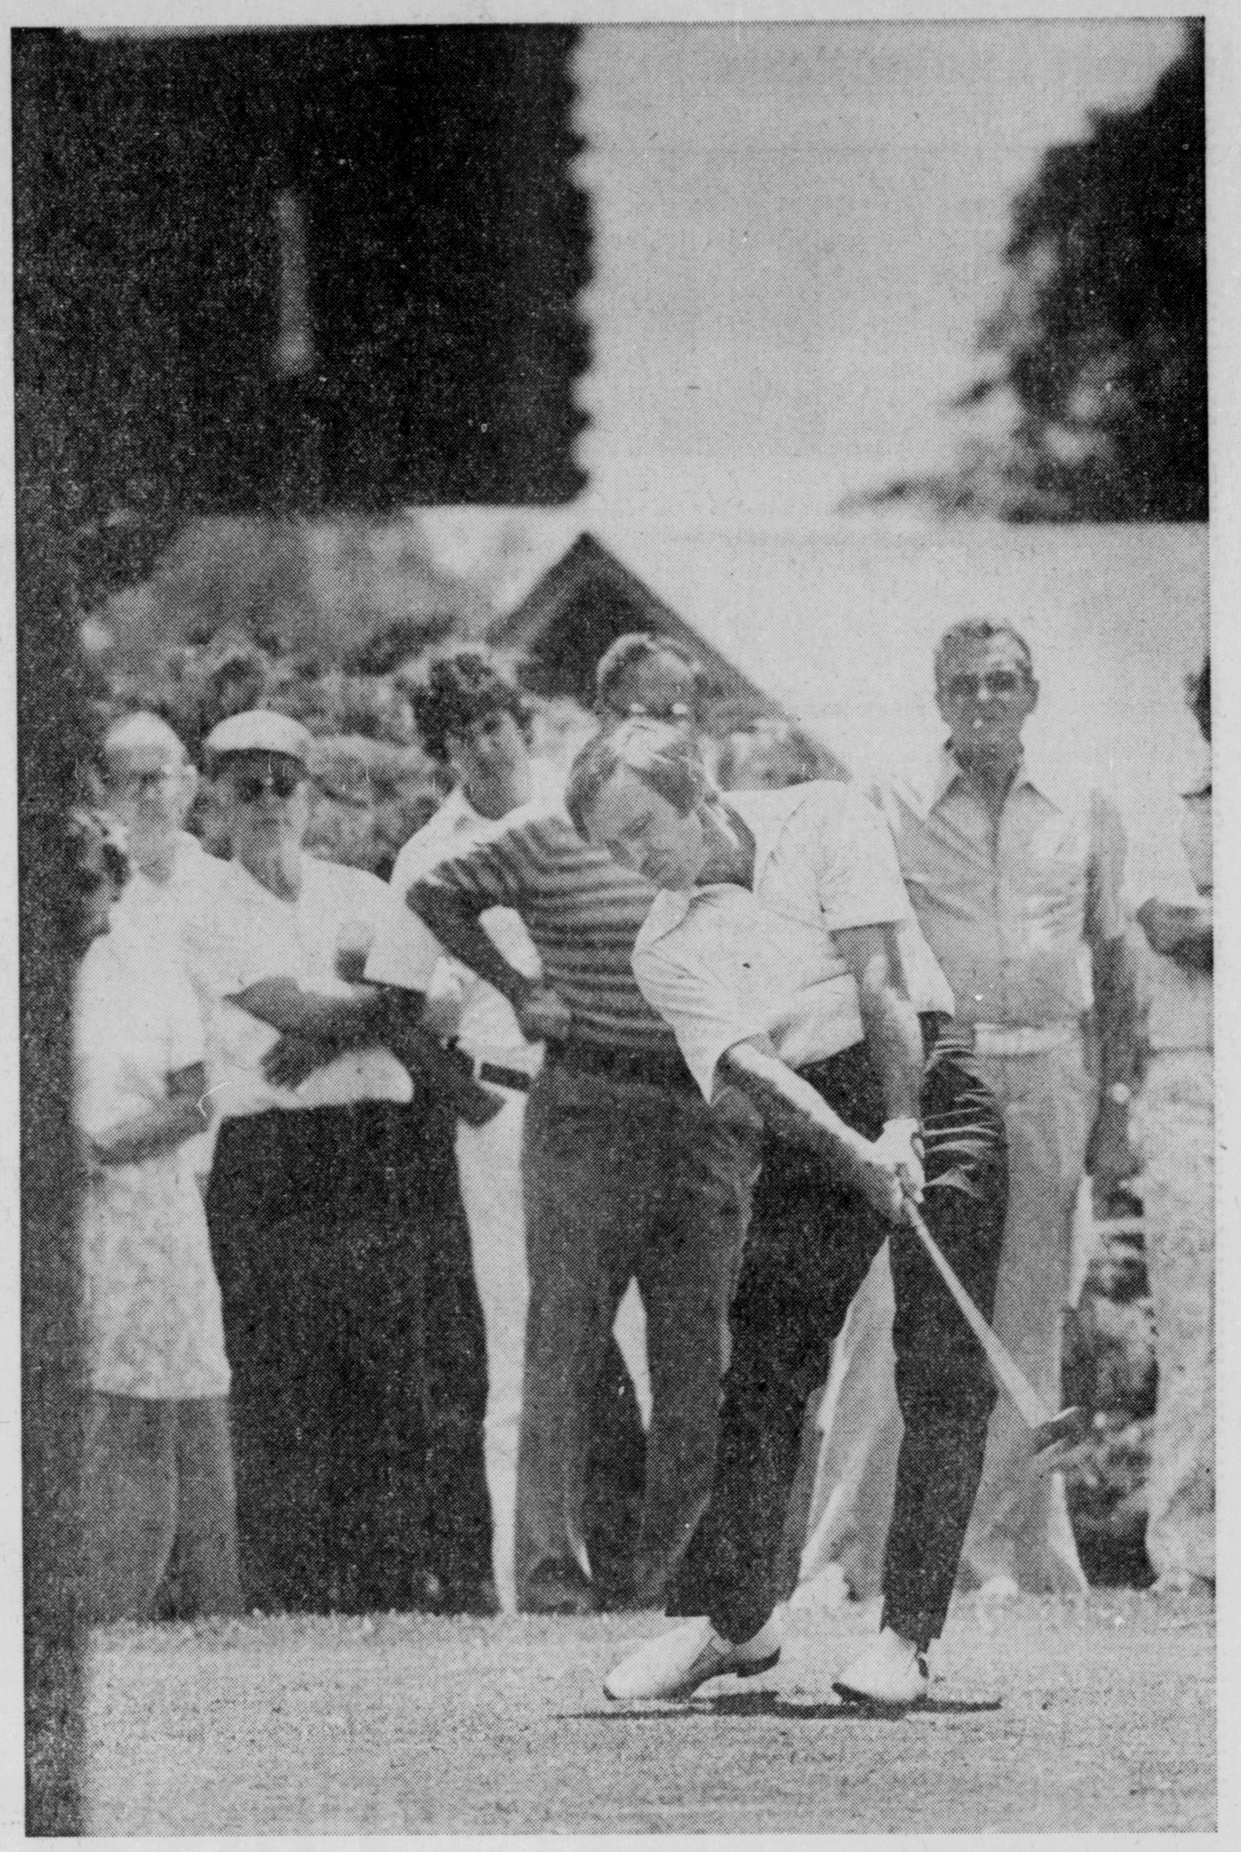
OVER HALF THE 22 hits in Monday's contest were of the infield variety but only the A's took advantage of the squibblers, which they turned into runs off Chris Knapp, who took the loss. Knapp was charged with five runs, only three of which were earned, and is now 5-4.

In the fourth the Sox got a run called back when a fan picked up a ball that bounced off A's leftfielder Mitchell Page. Page thought the ball was foul and stood there transfixed as the runners circled the bases. But the fan interference made it a ground-rule double which put runners at second and third. The rally died there, though the Sox loaded the bases before it was all over.

Another run was lost in the fifth when Kevin Bell slammed into A's catcher Manny Sanguillen in a play at the plate on a sacrifice fly. Bell was stunned by the block before he could touch the plate and was eventually tagged out for an inning-ending double play. The Sox contended Bell was illegally blocked since Sanguillen didn't have the ball.

Bell left the game with a bruised left knee and was taken for precautionary X-rays which proved negative. Sanguillen was also shaken up and later left the game. He stopped by the Sox clubhouse to check on Bell.

Richie Zisk also sat out Monday's game as his bruised right heel was hurting. It's a "day-to-day thing," said manager Bob Lemon describing Zisk's playing status.



Slug-a-thon goes to Cubs in 12th

SAN FRANCISCO — Joe Wallis raced around from first base with the winning run on Mick Kelleher's pop-fly triple with two out in the 12th inning as the Cubs, coming from behind twice, beat the Giants 10-9 Monday night.

Wallis had walked after San Francisco reliever Terry Cornutt retired the first two hitters in the 12th.

Donnie Moore (3-0) picked up the win in relief while Rick Reuschel, making a rare bullpen appearance, got the save by mopping up in the bottom of the inning. Reuschel, who was thrown out of Sunday's game in L.A., was the Cubs' sixth pitcher.

THE VICTORY helped the Cubs preserve their 5½-game lead in the NL East.

IT WAS A BIG night for Cub rightfielder Bobby Murcer, playing in front of his old Giant rooters for the first time since the infamous Bill Madlock trade. Murcer drove in six runs with a three-run homer and bases-loaded double. He had three extra-base hits.

The Giants fought back three times, wiping out an early 4-0 Cub lead thanks to Ray Burris' wildness and rookie Jack Clark's pinch-homer with two men on in the sixth. Then in the eighth, helped along by an error on Cub third baseman Steve Ontiveros, the Giants rallied for three runs to take an 8-6 lead, keyed by Derrell Thomas' two-run single off Sutter.

The Cubs never gave up either. Trailing 5-4 in the eighth, they got a two-run homer from Jerry Morales, following Murcer's double, to take a 6-5 lead. Then, in the ninth, with their backs to the wall, Mick Kelleher and Bobby Darwin singled, Bill Buckner was safe on a fielder's choice, and Murcer crashed a three-run double to left center to give the Cubs the lead again.

Donnie Moore was summoned from the Cub bullpen to protect the one-run lead but fate had a good laugh for Donnie. After striking out the first two batters, Moore got Gary Alexander to hit a high chopper to Manny Trillo at second. Trillo bobbled the ball and the Giants had new life.

MOORE WALKED Rob Andrews on four pitches and Clark, who stayed in the game after his pinch-homer, ripped the first delivery on a line into the left field corner for a game-tying double.

But Moore bailed out of the jam and continually frustrated San Francisco, setting them down in order in the 10th and leaving the winning run at second base in the 11th.

Meanwhile the Cubs found it difficult to get to Giant reliever Randy Moffitt, who knocked them down in the 10th and 11th.

For four innings, Burris battled Giant starter Jim Barr through an incipient pitcher's duel, each hurler firing zeroes until the fifth when a walk to Ivan DeJesus and line singles by Larry Biittner and Bill Buckner produced a Cub run after two were out. Murcer followed with his homer over the fence in right.

DeJESUS LATER was removed because of a minor leg pull.

The Giants managed to get back two of the runs off Burris in the bottom of the fifth when they loaded the bases on two hits and a walk, then scored on Gary Thomasson's infield out and Willie McCovey's hit through the middle that Trillo made an incredible stop on, preventing another run from scoring.

Clark's pinch-hit homer in the sixth came after Burris walked Andrews and Marc Hill.

Foulkes resigns as head coach of Sting

Willy Roy, eighth all-time leading scorer in the North American Soccer League, Monday was named head coach of the Sting, replacing Bill Foulkes, who resigned for personal reasons.

Roy, a former player and assistant coach with the Sting, is only the fourth American citizen to hold a top coaching spot in the NASL, the club said.

Foulkes will remain with the Sting in an advisory capacity.

BAD DAY. Bill Ventresca, pro at the Rolling Green Country Club, tees off Monday afternoon in the qualifying round for the Western Open on his own course. Ventresca finished with a 37-40-77, with a disastrous triple bogey on the 13th hole. That cost him a spot for this weekend's Open.

Ventresca cards disaster on 13th

by DON FRISKE

Monday was supposed to be a good day for Bill Ventresca.

The local golf pro arrived at his course, Rolling Green Country Club, in the morning with a good feeling, one of confidence.

But before his round of 18 holes was completed, the look of disappointment was solidly etched in his tanned face.

HE HAD TRIPLE bogeyed the 13th hole in the qualifying round for this weekend's Western Open. That, plus two other bogeys, gave Ventresca a 37-40-77, well below the 72 needed to qualify.

"On the 13th I did something I don't do very much at all," Ventresca explained with a shrug. "I hooked it, and it went out of bounds. Then my second drive into the fairway landed in a sandtrap."

Before his ball reached the green, he was working on his sixth shot for the hole, a par-5, 394-yarder with a dogleg left.

"I had to really play after that," Ventresca said.

HE KNEW HE didn't have a chance for anything much better than a 73 after the 13th, and even that would be five strikes off the day's best round.

Skip Dunaway and Ed Sabo each turned in a 32-36-68 to lead the field of 129 golfers that were vying for 27 places. Dwight Nevil and Tommy Valentine had 69s for the next best while eight finished both at 70 and 71 on the par-72 course.

Going into the 13th hole, Ventresca was only one over, having bogeyed the third. Being familiar with the course at which he has been pro for the last 12 years, he still had hopes of collecting some birdies following his downfall on No. 13.

Two par-5 holes were coming up, but the best he could do on each was par.

"Those were potentioal eagle holes," Ventresca said. "But when you're just trying to make pars, you get birdies. When you want birdies, you end up with bogies. You just get too aggressive, too bold."

VENTRESCA HAD HOPED to open his round with a few strong holes, but they never came about. The last four times he has played at Rolling Green he has scored 71, 69, 71 and 70. So confidence was in his favor.

"I just never got started. Getting a good start changes your whole approach," he said. "Otherwise, you're playing comeback.

"I just came up with a bad day. There's really no excuse because the course is in great condition. Call it a bad round."

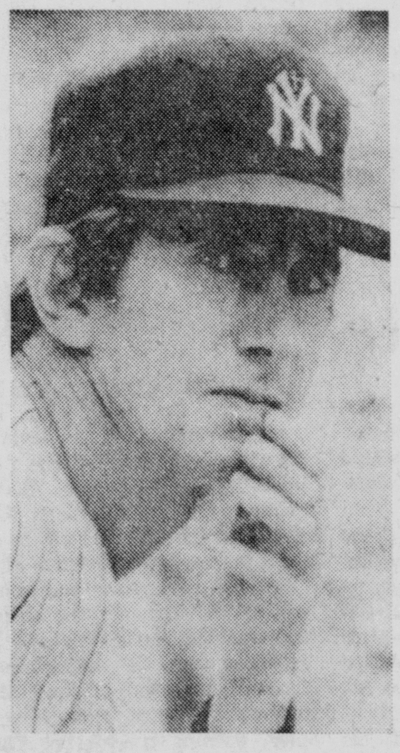
Ventresca hit every green in the front nine, but he three-putted the third hole. Then he missed the green on the 13th and 18th, which also ended up a bogey because of a sandtrap shot.

THIS WAS THE first time in four years that Ventresca has had to qualify for the Western. He was exempt the last three.

The other two times he had to qualify proved to be no trouble. In fact, he led the field one year with a 69.

"But if you don't get started good . . .," his voice trailed off.

Martin's final proof was in his punch



Billy Martin

Billy Martin's first major-league hit landed on Jimmy Piersall's chin 'way back in 1950. It was his way of saying "I am a man."

Between then and now the volatile Martin has punched Larry Doby, Jim Brewer, Dave Boswell, Clint Courtney (twice) and who knows how many assorted opponents, fans and teammates.

Fighting has always been Billy's way of surviving, from his days growing up in Berkeley, Calif. to his all-too-few moments at the top during his playing days with the Yankees.

THE CRITICS ARE saying that Martin will fight no more in the big leagues; that after his dugout fracas with Reggie Jackson on national TV last Saturday, the New York Yankee manager will be fired any day now.

A wire story by UPI sportwriter Milt Richman predicted Monday that Martin would be out of a job by today or Wednesday and it is not hard to understand why. Martin has been on the precipice all season with the Yankees, fending off attacks from the press with one hand and trying to right the dangerously listing ship that is the proud New York Yankees with the other.

Byline report

When will it all end for Billy? When will his 49 years of living experience tell him that he doesn't need to fight for every inch of territory and every bit of respect that he feels are his due?

The book on Billy Martin is that he suffers from a perverse sense of insecurity, that his natural abilities were never great enough to keep up with his mounting ego. Martin always wanted to be the best, and for a time he was the best. But he felt he had to continue proving it over and over again.

MARTIN WAS a .257 lifetime hitter with the physical appearance of a Dachau survivor. But he was the hero of two World Series and Casey Stengel loved him. "They say I have been biased in favor of Martin," Stengel once said. "Well, if liking a kid who will never let you down in the clutch is favoritism, well I plead guilty."

Stengel liked Billy because he was a fighter, not a brawler. Martin would stick up for his teammates. He would throw a punch if throwing a punch was the answer.

All too often, however, Billy was eager to throw punches when clear thinking was called for instead.

As a manager, Martin won divisional titles for Minnesota and Detroit and he won Manager of the Year honors at Texas for coming darn close. Last year he led the Yankees to their first pennant since 1964.

BUT HIS INSECURITY always brought him down. It was not only Martin's willingness to bloody someone's nose that got him into trouble; it was his tendency to criticize his bosses whenever he felt threatened by them.

And Billy felt threatened constantly.

Nowhere was the pressure greater than in New York, the scene of his earlier triumphs. It was in Yankee pinstripes that Martin earned his reputation and it was to be in those same pinstripes that Billy would be forced to prove himself again.

The old street-fighter returned to Gotham and brought back the Yankee magic, somehow. He did it against the odds, with his critics stacked in opposition to him.

IT WAS BILLY'S greatest fight and he won it. He showed them. It was a one-two punch that was indefensible. He had proved himself once more.

Since then, life has been hard on Martin. Fate gave him Reggie Jackson, so Billy had to go on the defensive one final time.

In the dugout in Boston last Saturday, after Martin had benched Jackson for slacking in the outfield, the manager and the superstar confronted each other like two vicious animals locked in mortal battle. The difference is, Jackson will survive.

Martin, struggling to escape the clutches of Yogi Berra and Elston Howard, used all of his remaining strength Saturday. He wasted himself in pursuit of his final challenge, the last threat to his manhood and his self-respect.

Exhausted, Billy Martin slumped onto the dugout bench. He had proved himself again.

Tanner upset in Wimbledon opener

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — While past champions paraded on the immaculately green center court Monday to celebrate the opening of Wimbledon's centennial championships, a British hero was busy on the adjoining court adding the name of Roscoe Tanner to the even bigger roll of favorites who have fallen in the first round.

John Lloyd, a British Davis Cup player ranked No. 3 at home, upset a nerve-ridden Tanner, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 8-6, to start the All-England Club's 100th year with a win nobody had predicted.

Tanner, seeded fourth and a semi-finalist here for the past two years, fell to the Briton on the No. 1 court where so many seeds have struggled against little-known opponents over the years.

DEFENDING CHAMPION Bjorn Borg of Sweden was seldom in trouble in his opening match, coming through, 6-4, 6-2, 9-7, against Italy's Antonio Zugarelli, who suffered a similar fate last year to Jimmy Connors in the opening round.

Connors, nursing a sore right thumb, had his opener postponed until Tuesday because of the injury and took advantage by getting some grass court practice in with his old friend Ilie Nastase.

Other seeds followed Borg's lead and came over the first and often most tricky hurdle without problems.

Vitas Gerulaitis, the eighth seed from New York, went past fellow American Tom Gorman in straight sets, 6-1, 9-8, 6-3. Gorman appeared to have trouble adapting from Team Tennis to the best-of-five-set match on grass and only made a fight of it in the second set.

BOB LUTZ, seeded 15th, had a straight set win over South Africa's Bernie Mitton, the man who ousted John Newcombe last year, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3, while fifth-ranked Brian Gottfried dumped Ramiro Benavides of Bolivia, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Guillermo Vilas, seeded third and in Borg's half of the draw, recovered from 2-5 in the first set to defeat the most dangerous unseeded player in the tournament-Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia. Vilas won, 9-8, 7-5, 6-4, against the 1973 champion, taking the opening set tie-breaker 7-2.

The No. 1 court, reputed to be the fastest of the 14 in use for the championships, looked like it would produce its second consecutive upset when Jaime Fillol of Chile led 12th seed Wojtek Fibak of Poland by two sets to one. But Fillol lost a vital fourth set tie-break 7-3 and the Pole went on to win, 6-3, 4-6, 4-6, 9-8, 6-4.

Dick Stockton, the ninth seed, swept past Briton Robin Drysdale, 6-3, 9-8, 6-3, winning the tie-breaker 11-9 when Drysdale double-faulted.

COPS INSTEAD of fans. Hubie Green is mobbed by police after his victory in the U.S. Open. The FBI in Oklahoma City received a phone call while play was going on in the final round and Green was informed of the threat on the 14th hole.

Wix rolls to mile record

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Randy Wix of Buffalo Grove, Ill., set a record of 5:50.92 in the mile race in the finals of the 21st National Wheelchair Olympics.

Wix, who Saturday rolled his wheelchair over the 100-yard course for a record of 17.96, was one of 29 athletes selected to attend the International Wheelchair Games in Stoke-Mandeville, England, on July 24.

John Brown, San Bernardino, Calif., was selected to attend the international event after he achieved a world record lift of 580 pounds in the heavyweight classification of the bench-press weightlifting.

In the women's events, Sharon Rahn broke a record in the 880 with a time of 3:32.43 and Kathlynne Carleton set a mile mark with a time of 8:40.21.

Three persons were named into the Wheelchair Sports Hall of Fame. They were Jim Mathis, Twinsberg, Ohio; Darlene Quinlan, Livonia, Mich., and Bill Fairbanks, Villa Park, Calif.

Threat failed to pale Green

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Of all the countless thousands of putts he has sunk in his seven years as a professional, none ever gave Hubert Green the degree of satisfaction this one did — or more of an empty feeling.

Here he was the new U.S. Open Champion, with his first major title ever, the one every golfer dreams of, and he wasn't even able to enjoy it.

He had just knocked in a difficult 4-footer on the final hole, one of those character-builders which separate the lion-hearted from the chickenhearted, and he was a 1-stroke winner over Lou Graham as well as being $45,000 richer, only he didn't look that way at all.

ORDINARILY, A U.S. Open winner gives you that million dollar smile and waves his arms jubilantly in the air the moment he knows for sure he has won, especially after having made the kind of pressure putt Green did.

Instaad of doing anything like that, though, Green stood a foot or so from where his ball still lay in the cup after he holed it out, and from the tight, almost sad expression on his face, you'd have thought he was a loser instead of the winner.

A women's telephone call might have had a lot to do with the way Green felt although he did everything he could later to brush it off.

"I'd rather not go into it, if you don't mind," he said later. "There was nothing I could do about it. It was out of my hands."

WHAT HAPPENED was that a clerk in the Oklahoma City office of the FBI had received a call from a woman who did not identify herself while Green was playing the 10th hole during Sunday's final round at Southern Hills here.

She told the FBI clerk she had three men friends who were in trouble, and the reason she was calling was because she wanted to save them from further trouble. They were on their way to Tulsa to shoot Hubie Green on the 15th green.

All this was revealed after Green had won, not by Green himself, but by Sandy Tatum, vice president of the USGA and chairman of its championship committee.

Tatum said his people were informed of the threat on Green's life by Lieutenant Charles Jones of the Tulsa police, and they were faced with the difficult decision — "Hobson's choice," Tatum called it — of whether to tell Green about it or not.

THE USGA and the Tulsa police weighed the options. They could tell Green about the threat, keep it from him, or suspend play. Finally, they decided to tell him.

"We decided Hubie ought to know what we knew," said Tatum.

Green was informed before teeing off on the 15th hole, which he parred.

"Hubie was something else," said Tatum, talking about the way Green accepted the news. "There wasn't a flicker except for that marvelous sense of humor he has. There was no hesitation on Hubie Green's part whatsoever. He simply went over and hit a drive on the 15th and when he came to the 15th green, he hit an absolutely perfect putt. I think it was one of the most remarkable exhibitions of grace under pressure that I have ever seen."

Reggie, Yankees lose again as Bird keeps soaring high

From The Herald Wire Services

The American League was busy Monday night. The Detroit Tigers upended the New York Yankees 2-1, the Boston Red Sox shutout the Baltimore Orioles 4-0, the Texas Rangers edged the Minnesota Twins 2-1, the Seattle Mariners topped the Kansas City Royals 4-2, and the Cleveland Indians defeated the Toronto Blue Jays 8-5.

Right fielder Reggie Jackson's misplay of a routine fly ball by Mickey Stanley set up Aurelio Rodriguez' tie-breaking single Monday night that gave the Tigers a nationally-televised victory over the slumping Yankees behind the three-hit pitching of Mark Fidrych.

Fidrych won his fourth straight game after two season opening losses and wowed Detroit's largest crowd of the season, 47,236, with a nine-strikeout performance that was easily his best of the season.

AL baseball

Jim Rice ripped a run-scoring triple and three singles, Carl Yastrzemski doubled in a pair of runs and Butch Hobson added a solo home run leading the Red Sox to a victory over the Orioles behind the two-hit pitching of Rick Wise in Baltimore.

Hobson's ninth home run with two out in the eighth enabled the Red Sox to tie a major league record of most home runs in six consecutive games with 22.

Sandy Alomar scored on a infield hit by Juan Beniquez in the third inning and Toby Harrah hit his ninth homer in the seventh to lift the Rangers to a triumph over the Twins at Bloomington, Minn. Dock Ellis, making his first start for the Rangers, went 6 1-3 innings to gain his third victory in nine decisions, while Paul Thormodsgard took the loss despite giving up only five hits.

Lee Stanton knocked in three runs with a pair of singles to give the Mariners a victory over the Royals at Kansas City.

Steve Braun doubled in the first inning and came home on Stanton's first single and the Seattle designated hitter knocked in the final two runs in the eighth after Jose Baez singled, Dan Meyer walked and the runners into scoring position on an infield out.

Ray Fosse's bases-loaded triple in the top of the 11th inning lifted the Indians to their third straight victory under new manager Jeff Torborg, an 8-5 decision over the Blue Jays in Toronto.

Hallett resumes hot streak

Herald handicapper Ray Hallett duplicated a rare five-winner day Saturday at Arlington Park with five more Monday.

Hallett successfully predicted that Loons Buster ($5.60), Parolee ($7.60), Avenir ($6), Hillcari ($8.60) and Really In ($6.40) would cross the wire first Saturday.

Hallett's followers Monday cashed tickets in the first four races as Princess Victory ($4, Whistling Wings ($6), High Boy ($5.20) and Grey Glitter ($5.60), crossed the wire in front. He added Baked Onions ($8.60) in the sixth for another standout performance.

The daily double (winners of the first and second races) paid $15.40. In addition, Hallett correctly pegged the Quinella (first and second finishers) in the second race when Whistling Wings and New Perfection combined for a $25.40 mutuel.

C. H. HAFT'S Buddy Larosa, hero of the June 11 Shecky Greene Handicap, returns to the races today versus seven opponents in the $10,000 Exterminator Purse for three-year-olds up at one mile on the main course.

Trainer Ted McClatin has named Eddie Delahoussaye to handle the stretch-running son of Olden Times who is looking for victory number three of 1977. Buddy Larosa's triumph in the Shecky Greene brought the four-year-old's earnings this year near the $35,000 mark.

M. Fink and R. Gottlieb's Whirlawhile, Willowbrook Stable's Jet Jumper and Robert Mitchell's Bee's Zip will be among today's opposition.

Whirlawhile went off as the 4-5 choice in his last trip postward, but the Graustark colt had to settle for second behind Leader of the Band in a mile and one-sixteenth allowance event on Arlington's turf June 6. The Lou Goldfine trainee is seeking his initial win of the season, this being his fifth start. Whirlawhile has been out of the money just once in nine lifetime voyages.

Phillies, Astros lead light N.L. slate

From Herald Wire Services

National League baseball action was light Monday night. The Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 10-4, and the Houston Astros beat the Montreal Expos, 6-3. The Atlanta-New York Mets game was rained out.

Mike Schmidt drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a single to pace an 11-hit attack which carried the Philadelphia Phillies to a victory over the Cincinnati Reds in Philadelphia.

The Phillies scored in each of the first six innings to win their fourth straight and break a nine-game, two-year losing streak to the Reds. Jim Kaat hurled his first complete game of the season to gain his second win, while Fred Norman took the loss.

NL baseball

Schmidt homered with Jerry Martin aboard in the first, his 16 of the year. Larry Bowa hit his third homer of the year in the second to make the score 3-0. The Reds got two back in the third when Pete Rose singled in one run and the second scored on a wild pitch.

Joe Ferguson doubled home two runs in the seventh inning and Enos Cabell hit a two-run homer in the second when the Houston Astros defeated the Montreal Expos, six-three at Montreal.

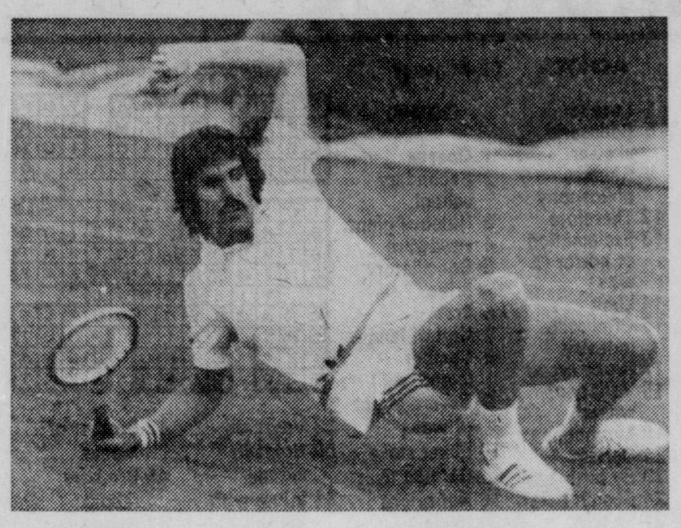
The score was tied 3-3 when Cesar Cedeno walked to open the seventh. Cabell followed with a single to set up Ferguson's game-winning double. Cabell's second-inning homer came after Julio Gonzalez singled and moved to second on a sacrifice to give the Astros a 3-2 lead.

J. R. Richards who evened his record at 6-6, scattered eight hits, struck out nine and helped his own cause with a ninth-inning solo homer.

Athlete's Foot plans area running club

A new running club is beginning in the area, sponsored by The Athlete's Foot at Woodfield Mall. It will be known as the Chicagoland Athlete's Foot Running Club and will be open to men, women and children of all ages.

Serving as advisor and consultant will be Tom Brunick, the cross country coach at Lewis University. Interested runners — whether they are serious competitors or simply run-for-funners — should plan to attend a short opening meeting at The Athlete's Foot, main level of Woodfield Mall, on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. For information call 885-2146.



RAUL RAMIREZ of Mexico takes a tumble during his tennis match against Peter Fleming in the Wimbledon Centenary Championships Monday. Darkness stopped play with Ramirez leading.

Martin surviving as Yank manager

DETROIT — Chastened Billy Martin earned a reprieve as manager of the New York Yankees Monday night when club president Gabe Paul successfully talked team owner George Steinbrenner out of firing him. "There are a lot of rumors, unconfirmed rumors of changes in our organization," Paul said, leading off an unusual press conference called just 10 minutes prior to the start of New York's nationally-televised game at Detroit.

"There is not going to be a change regardless of what you have heard," Paul said. "Some things that needed to be straightened out have been. Billy Martin will continue as manager of the New York Yankees."

"I feel secure," said a somber Martin after a pre-game meeting with Steinbrenner and Reggie Jackson, the confrontation from which the right fielder emerged beaming.

"I plan on being here until I'm told otherwise," Martin said.

Red Sox lead AL All-Star voting

NEW YORK — Not only did the Boston Red Sox take over first place in the American League East with an overwhelming display of power this weekend, but four of their players are ahead in balloting at their positions to select the All-Star team.

According to the latest voting released Monday, Carlton Fisk is in front in the balloting for catcher, Rick Burleson leads at shortstop and Carl Yastrzemski and Fred Lynn are the leading vote-getters among outfielders. Yastrzemski hit four of Boston's record 16 homers in a weekend sweep of the Yankees.

The leaders at the other positions for the game to be played in Yankee Stadium on Tuesday night, July 19, are Rod Carew of Minnesota at first base, Don Money of Milwaukee at second base, George Brett of Kansas City at third base and Joe Rudi of California for the third outfield berth.

Turner-piloted yacht wins Cup race

NEWPORT, R.I. — Courageous, the 1974 America's Cup champion, overcame a slimy bottom to beat 12-meter challenger Independence twice Monday in trial races to choose a U.S. defender of the cup. Bottom slime, a layer of brown crud usually scraped off the underside of the hull before an important race, often can slow a yacht enough to make the difference between winning and losing.

But Courageous, with Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner at the helm, gained an early lead over Independence and stayed in front throughout the third day of a series of races to determine this year's Cup defender. Both races were shortened after the fifth of six legs because Courageous was so far ahead it was impossible for Independence to catch up. Courageous was ahead by 67 seconds in the first race and 52 in the second.

Jets getting the jump on NFL teams

NEW YORK — The New York Jets, who open the 1977 National Football League exhibition schedule against the Chicago Bears in the July 30 Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio, will be the first of the 28 clubs to report to camp next month. The Jets, under new Coach Walt Michaels, will have rookies reporting to their Hofstra University training site at Hempstead, N.Y., on July 7. Veterans are due July 15.

The Bears will be the earliest of the NFC teams to have veterans report. Rookies and vets are scheduled to report together at Lake Forest College in Lake Forest, Ill., on July 17. The World Champion Oakland Raiders will be the last AFC club to report, with rookies checking into the Santa Rosa, Calif., training site on July 18 and vets on July 24.

Cauthen back in the saddle again

NEW YORK — Steve Cauthen, injured a month ago in a spectacular three-horse spill that put the nation's leading jockey in the hospital, will start riding again Thursday at Belmont Park. "He'll start working out horses again tomorrow," Cauthen's agent, Lennie Goodman, said Monday night from his home in Woodmere, L.I., "and he'll have four mounts Thursday afternoon."

Cauthen, who burst upon the New York scene last winter after successfully opening his riding career at River Downs, Churchill Downs and Arlington Park, had 240 winners last year and was up to 273 winners for 1977 at the time of his accident May 23. Cauthen, Jorge Velasquez and Pat Day were all involved in the spill, in which two of their mounts suffered injuries serious enough to be destroyed.

Day was unhurt and Velasquez was released from the hospital the same day with a minor break in his left foot, but Cauthen spent four days in Long Island Jewish Hospital with a fractured wrist, bruises and cuts and a mild concussion.

Logan Square wins consolation

Arlington on top at Bloomington

Two local American Legion baseball teams enjoyed a profitable weekend at the annual Bloomington Invitational Tournament.

Arlington won four games to take first place while Logan Square was 2-1, capturing the top spot in the consolation bracket.

Arlington opened the tourney with a 12-11 victory against Decatur, Iowa. Decatur built leads of 4-0 and 7-3 before Arlington exploded in the final innings.

WITH FOUR RUNS in the fifth, Arlington tied the score on four walks and two doubles, one each by Mike Jennings and Paul Lundstedt.

Decatur scored four runs in the next inning, but Arlington quickly came back with five. John Vukovich opened the sixth with a double. That was followed by three singles and a walk to decide the game.

Jim McDonald got the win as both teams collected 10 hits and committed three errors.

In the next game, Arlington scored two runs in the eighth inning to defeat Danville, 4-3. Both teams scored two runs in the first, Arlington's coming on a walk, a triple by Mike Mayerck and an error.

IN THE EIGHTH, two singles preceded another Mayerck triple. Danville scored only one run in the bottom of the inning, even though five hits were recorded. Arlington put two runners at the plate as Todd Walker picked up the complete-game victory.

Collinsville became Arlington's third victim in another close game. Arlington scored the winning run in the 3-2 contest during the bottom of the eighth.

John Mertins walked and eventually scored on an error. The two Arlington runs in the third inning were also unearned as Collinsville committed five errors.

Doug Harth got the victory as he allowed six hits in eight innings of work.

ARLINGTON HAD no trouble in the final game, defeating Bloomington, 9-1. Kevin McBride got the win with seven innings of scoreless pitching. McBride, who has not allowed a run so far this season, also added to the Arlington hit total of 16 with a double.

The only other extra-base hits were triples by Mayerck and Vukovich. Arlington is now 9-1, the only loss coming against Morton Grove.

The Logan Square Lions opened the tourney with a 3-1 loss to Collinsville as Mike Marshall suffered the defeat.

But the Lions came back strong in the next two games.

They beat Decatur, Iowa, 11-1, behind the pitching of Tim Prokof. They followed that with a victory in the consolation title game. Tom Brady earned a 7-2 decision against Eureka.

Arlington will play at Barrington tonight while Logan Square hosts Schaumburg. Rolling Meadows will also play at Maine East. All games begin at 6 p.m.

Proper trump management

Here is a good hand for use of the code word ARCH. At least South needs the "C" (Count your winners and losers) and the "H" (How can I make this hand?).

There are two sure trump losers, a very likely heart loser and two possible club losers.

South's problem is to handle those two club losers and he can do this with proper trump management.

He must find a way to play two rounds of trumps without giving the defense a chance to play a third round.

This isn't too difficult. He simply leads a low trump at trick two. It doesn't matter who wins the trick and what is led back. Suppose East wins and leads back a second club.

South wins and cashes his ace of spades. Then he ruffs a club. Next come three high diamonds from dummy. West can ruff the third or discard. It doesn't matter there is no way to keep South from ruffing his last club with dummy's last trump.

Ask Andy

Echo answers every word you shout it

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Nicole Gaskin, 13, of Kingston, Ont., Canada, for her question:

WHAT MAKES AN ECHO?

In Greek Mythology, Echo was a nymph who kept up an incessant talk with Hera in order to distract her attention from her faithless husband. Discovering the trick, Hera punished Echo by taking away her power of speech until she was first spoken to, at which time she was compelled to answer. She fell in love with Narcissus, who didn't love her, and so she pined away until there wasn't anything left except her voice.

From the chatty little girl named Echo in Greek mythology comes the word we know as the reflection, or bounce-back, of a sound against some object.

When we give a yell or make a loud clapping sound with our hands, the sound waves travel in every direction. We can hear the clap or yell when the sound reaches our ears. Often the sound waves may travel to a large, distant object where they will bounce back to reach our ears a second time. This second sound, the reflected noise, is called an echo.

There can be times when we do not hear echoes, even though reflected sound waves may be reaching our ears. We will not hear an echo, for example, if the original sound was too weak. We won't hear it either if the reflecting object is too small.

In addition, we may not hear the echo if the reflected sound hits an object less than 30 feet away. Both the original sound and the bounce-back then will reach our ears at about the same time.

Other times we may hear more than one echo from a single original sound. Repeating echoes often occur in canyons or valleys where many surfaces can reflect the sound. When this happens, sound waves will bounce from one wall to another in a number of repeating echoes.

You can use an echo to tell how far away you are from an echo-producing object. Sound waves travel about one mile in five seconds, so if it takes 10 seconds for a sound to return as an echo, you know you are one mile from the object. If you're standing on one side of a canyon and your yell comes back as an echo in five seconds, you can figure the canyon is about a half-mile wide.

Did you know that echoes also can travel through water? A sounding system called sonar is used with underwater echoes to measure water depths and even to locate lost objects. Sonar also is used in the navigation of ships through narrow channels and successfully is used to locate schools of fish swimming in the ocean.

Andy sends a Denoyer-Geppert World Globe to Bo Wood, 11, Franklin, N.C., for his question:

WHY DOES POISON OAK ITCH?

Some experts say that poison oak and poison ivy are the same, with oak growing in bush form and ivy growing on vines. Others say there are a few differences: the poison oak leaflets are more deeply notched. Poison oak is found in the woods and thickets of many parts of the United States and Canada.

A poisonous oil is produced from the plant. When contact is made with the body, a rash and watery blisters can result. The poison also makes the skin itch. A crust often develops on the skin and the painful itching irritation can last for many days.

Extreme caution must be taken when walking or working in areas where poison oak is common.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
